Mundt Looks For Demands In Congress

Washington — (AP) — Senators investigating violence in the marathon strike against the Kohler Co. said today one result may be federal legislation dealing with mass picketing.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.), chairman of the special senate rackets committee, told newsmen it may wish to consider "whether it is an improper labor practice that should be dealt with by legislation."

Sen. Mundt (R-SD), a committee member, said that testimony about mass picketing at the Kohler plant by United Auto Workers strikers "probably will lead to demands for legislation."

Mundt said his concern was with the "use of force" to prevent a person from entering a plant — not just with pickets who stand outside a plant and shout derisively at workers who enter.

Mundt said testimony already taken about mass picketing at the plant shows "the use of raw force" and added that such mass picketing was illegal under Wisconsin law.

Denies Illegal Picketing

However, Harvey Kitzman, a UAW regional director in Milwaukee, denied in testimony last Friday that the union had engaged in an illegal type of picketing at the plant of the Wisconsin manufacturer of plumbing fixtures.

Kennedy told him the union committed "the first illegal act" in the dispute by starting mass picketing in April, 1954, but Kitzman said it was necessary to protect strikers from company guards.

The protracted strike is still in progress after nearly four years. The senate inquiry into it has stirred up strife among the committee members, but McClellan said the hearings will be carried through to the end.

3 Youths Admit Bank Holdup Guilt

New Haven, Conn. — (AP) — Three teenagers pleaded guilty today in federal court to the $20,000 armed robbery of a branch bank Feb. 6.

The three were Mersin F. Gule, 18, Michael A. Berardi, 18, and John George Wallace, 19, all of Waterbury, Conn. Each can receive a maximum 45-year prison term.

The charges resulted from the noon robbery of a branch of the Colonial Trust Co. in Waterbury. Three gun-waving youths lined customers and bank employees against a wall and fled into a busy shopping area with a canvas bag full of cash.

Ask Punishment for Tormentors of Boy

Seoul — (AP) — The South Korean home ministry demanded punishment today of three Americans it named as tormentors of a 14-year-old Korean thief who was beaten and nailed into a small wooden box last week.

A ministry spokesman said a "strong protest" note was sent the U.S. Army via the Korean foreign ministry and the U.S. embassy.

The Korean government demanded punishment for Maj. Thomas James, Plymouth Pa.; Capt. Marvin E. Kemp, Kilmer, Miss.; and Master Sgt. Robert E. Weidensaul, Pottstown, Pa.

Cross May Face Fight as Bakery Union's Chief

Opposition to His Reelection Does Not Appear Strong

Cincinnati — (AP) — James G. Cross may run into a fight here to retain his presidency of the scandal-racked Bakery and Confectionary Workers' union, but the opposition so far looks soft.

The embattled union, ousted by the AFL-CIO on charges of corrupt leadership, opened a special convention here today at which Cross will seek reelection.

A union spokesman said, "the persons who might have opposed Mr. Cross just aren't here," but added that opposition to Cross seems sure to develop.

Subpenas Served

Cross and Peter H. Olson, acting union secretary-treasurer, were caught up in a legal skirmish yesterday involving Cincinnati bakery workers.

Officials of Cincinnati Local 213—which broke away from the union and joined a new organization set up by the AFL-CIO—said subpenas were served on Cross and Olson. The subpenas require them to bring union records tomorrow and give depositions in a court fight over the local's assets.

But a spokesman for Cross said he doubts that service of the subpenas was legal since they were handed to Olson by an unidentified group.

The convention will bring together about 45 delegates representing 100,000 members in 165 locals, according to union figures. Another 2,000 members in 58 locals do not send delegates because of small membership.

The AFL-CIO union claims 96 locals have pulled out of the old organization and joined the new group.

Trains Through City Slow Down After 3 Deaths at Crossing

La Porte, Ind. — (AP) — New York Central mainline trains crept through this city of 20,000 at 15 miles an hour today in a city council rebellion over the death of three teenagers at a blind crossing.

Police Chief Leo Cramer said his force was ready to clock trains under a revived 40-year-old city ordinance when trains began slowing down Sunday evening.

Meanwhile, city officials ordered all-night blockades set up on two streets, including the Perry street crossing, scene of the crash Saturday night. The crossing, with tall buildings blinding the approaches, has a watchman during the day but only warning bells at night.

City councilmen ordered the crackdown at a special meeting Sunday with Eugene Burger, La Porte freight agent for the NYC. They demanded that NYC send in an authoritative official for a regular council meeting tonight.

The councilmen made it clear they want action on NYC promises of crossing gates and flashers, rather than a permanent slowdown to speeds which they admitted are obsolete.

Tries to Talk French Into Compromise

Murphy Confers With Premier at Luncheon Meeting

Paris — (AP) — U. S. Envoy Robert Murphy today embarked on the second and most difficult phase of his good offices mission to settle the French-Tunisian dispute—talking the French into making a compromise.

The U. S. conciliator planned a luncheon meeting today with French Premier Felix Gaillard. In an earlier visit to Paris the American sounded out the French position and then went to Tunis for meetings with Tunisian officials. Now he must try to work out some formula to reconcile their conflicting views.

Gaillard's government has insisted that France must retain the big naval base at Bizerte in northern Tunisia plus a string of airfields along the coastline. Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba wants all French forces out of his country, a former French protectorate, and would accept a proposal to put the Bizerte base under control of North Atlantic Treaty alliance forces.

Debate in France

Bourguiba also is demanding international consideration of the Algerian rebellion, which France adamantly opposes.

Gaillard is now in the middle of a hot debate on the military budget. If he retreats on Tunisia, ultra-nationalist rightists might withdraw their support from his government and send it tumbling.

Murphy arrived early this morning from Tunis and set up a temporary office in the U. S. embassy. He met with the embassy's North African experts and then with U. S. Ambassador Amory Houghton and British Ambassador Sir Gladwyn Jebb.

Divers Find Hulk Of Sunken Ferry

Izmit, Turkey — (AP) — Navy divers today located the hulk of the sunken ferry Uskudar and reported its lower saloon is crowded with bodies.

The ferry overturned during a storm in the narrow gulf of the Sea of Marmara Saturday 15 minutes after leaving the port of Izmit for Istanbul.

A total of 220 bodies has been recovered, but newspapers said the total dead might reach 350 or 400. At least 40 persons escaped.

The divers found the 148-ton ferry in 66 feet of water about a mile off shore. No estimate could be made of the number of bodies inside.

Soviet Ambassador Sees Ike and Dulles

Reports 'Very Useful Conversation' During White House Interview

Washington — (AP) — Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov met for 30 minutes today with President Eisenhower and reported afterward they had a "very useful conversation."

Menshikov brushed aside questions about whether his call dealt with a summit conference, saying "it hasn't ripened yet for publication."

Soviet sources said, however, that Menshikov met with Eisenhower for the second time in three weeks to discuss the Kremlin's proposal for an east-west foreign ministers meeting in April.

The Soviet ambassador, who went to the White House alone, hinted that Eisenhower talked bluntly with him about Soviet problems with the west.

"I found the president looking healthy, and he's very cheerful," Menshikov said.

No White House Comment

"He's frank and straightforward and openhearted — qualities we Russians like."

Secretary of State Dulles also sat in on the meeting. James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said after Menshikov left that the White House had nothing to say at this time about his visit.

Menshikov also fended off questions about whether he left any notes with the president.

Dulles left the White House by a side door while newsmen were questioning Menshikov.

The White House stressed that the Soviet envoy asked for the appointment before the Kremlin sent a note Friday proposing a foreign ministers conference in April to pave the way for an east-west summit meeting.

The Russian ambassador, who first met Eisenhower early last month to present his credentials, made today's appointment early last week. Aides have declined to disclose what specific purpose he had in mind.

Soviet Concession

After the date was made, Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko handed to U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson in Moscow the proposal for a foreign ministers meeting to discuss the time, place, participants and agenda for a summit conference. This reached Washington Friday night and is still under study here.

Eisenhower and Dulles reportedly decided in a White House talk Saturday that the proposition was a move in the right direction but that it does not go far enough toward meeting American requirements — and those of other western governments — for careful preparation in advance of a summit conference.

Nevertheless, it was generally regarded as a concession on Russia's part to the western point of view. It was found wanting in these respects:

It made no provision for a substantial discussion of the issues which might arise at a summit conference but only for deciding which of them should be placed on the agenda.

It emphasized Russian proposals for banning nuclear weapons, suspending nuclear tests, signing an east-west non-aggression pact and similar steps almost to the exclusion of western proposals which have mile off shore. No estimate could be made of the number of bodies inside.

Probe Chairman States 'Certain Senators' Will Be Called by Committee

Washington — (AP) — The chairman of the house committee investigating the FCC said today he will seek to impeach Commissioner Richard A. Mack, and that "certain senators" who intervened in a Miami television case are going to have to come before the committee.

Chairman Harris (D - Ark.) made this pronouncement after G. T. Baker, winner in the TV case rocked by charges of influence, protested that it appeared Mack was to be "crucified" while others escaped.

Baker demanded that senators and others be investigated for what he called their "improper activities" in behalf of a rival applicant for the TV license.

Harris told Baker he was going to try to re-establish the confidence of the American people in the FCC.

"Just as soon as I can get to it, I am filing a resolution bringing about the impeachment of Mr. Mack," Harris said.

Harris went on to say that Baker's statement was "so strong" that it appeared "certain senators" are going to have to come before the committee.

Baker, president of National Airlines and its television subsidiary, had made his demands in a long statement read to the committee.

"You have made a very interesting statement, Mr. Baker," Harris said when Baker finished his statement.

Strong Statement

"As a matter of fact it is like some other statements that we have received—very revealing. You have made a very strong statement, in fact."

Harris went on to say that Baker's statement "confirms that something needs to be done. . . . You have stated that you wanted action and you're going to get it."

Harris said he didn't see how anyone or any side in the Miami channel fight could be proud of the "gyrations" that went on.

Harris said also that Baker's statement confirms Harris' comment of last week that Mack was to be pitied.

Mack has remained publicly silent since he told the house investigators last Friday he would seriously consider demands that he resign. The demands came after several weeks of hearings on the role played by Mack in the Miami TV fight.

Demands Inquiry

Baker spoke of Mack as being "broken" and asked what about others involved in the case.

Specifically, he demanded investigation of what Sens. Ke-fauver (D-Tenn), Holland (D-Fla) and Smathers (D-Fla) did in behalf of A. Frank Katzen-tine, a losing applicant for Miami's TV Channel 10.

Baker told the subcommittee, several members of which have demanded Mack's immediate resignation:

"The public of this nation will not be satisfied if this committee makes Commissioner Mack and Mr. (Thurman A.) Whiteside the 'fall guys' of this investigation while the senators involved, former government officials like Paul Porter, and powerful business pressures like Eastern Airlines, continue their prowl in the halls of these agencies without punishment."

Whiteside is a Miami lawyer and lifelong friend of Mack.

Arcadia — (AP) — Burt Nelson, 68, died early today in a fire that swept the trailer home in which he lived alone.

The trailer was located at the rear of the General Telephone Co. office. A neighbor saw the flames at 3 a. m. and called the fire department. Firemen did not know Nelson was in the trailer until they brought the blaze under control, entered the trailer and found the body.

Bishop's Conviction for Defaming Atheist Causes Pope to Cancel Feast

Vatican City — (AP) — Pope Pius XII in an unprecedented action today suspended the celebration of his coronation anniversary in "bitterness, sadness and outrage" over the conviction of a bishop on charges of defaming an atheist and a former communist.

The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano declared that members of the court may have incurred automatic excommunication for their action against the bishop. The bishop called on himself forgave them.

The conviction, handed down on the eve of the pope's 82nd birthday, was reported to have left the pontiff grief-stricken. Some Vatican sources said he offered his birthday mass for the convicted bishop, but this could not be confirmed.

The pope observed his birthday quietly. He came to his window overlooking St. Peter's square as he usually does and blessed a cheering throng of These expressed sorrow over about 10,000 pilgrims, tourists and Romans. The day also marked the 19th anniversary of his election to the holy office. The only other similar action to today's cancellation that could be recalled by Vatican circles was in 1931. Then Pope Pius XI, the present pope's predecessor, suspended plans for a pontifical legate to go to Padua for ceremonies observing the 100th anniversary of the death of St. Anthony of Padua.

This action was taken in protest against what the Vatican called an anti-clerical campaign in Italy at that time.

Bishop Forgives Judges

The Vatican communique said:

"In the present conditions of bitterness, sadness and outrage caused to the church in Italy, to the holy office, to its episcopate and clergy, and to its Catholic faithful, the holy father, who has received innumerable protests from all parts of the world, has believed it necessary to suspend for this

Meeting with Reds Ends in Deadlock

North Korean Demands for Talks Regarding Return of U. S. Pilots, 2 West Germans Bring Stalemate

Panmunjom, Korea.—A 6-hour allied-communist meeting on the possible return of two Germans and two Americans held in North Korea ended in a deadlock today over red demands for negotiations between governments.

The communists flatly rejected a UN command proposal that the two American pilots and two West German passengers of the South Korean commercial airliner held in North Korea since Feb. 16 be handed over at once to U.S. and West German diplomatic representatives present at a meeting of secretaries of the allied-red truce commission.

The North Koreans demanded that arrangements first be worked out by meetings between officials of the United States, West Germany and North Korea, which would like to get recognition in any form from the western powers.

Political Meeting

After arguments lasting into the night, U.S. navy Capt. George W. Kehl, the UN representative told the reds the allied side "has no intention to arrange a political meeting between government representatives."

The session adjourned indefinitely.

The communists also refused to meet with representatives of the South Korean Red Cross concerning the 30 Korean passengers on the plane.

Kehl told newsmen he had no idea what the next step would be.

He said the allies would have to wait until the communists call another meeting. Today's was called by the UN command to test the communist intentions.

Kehl said the allies would be

John Held, Flapper Age Artist, Dies

Belmar, N. J.—John Held, Jr., cartoon chronicler of the "flapper" era, died at his home here yesterday. He was 69.

Held's clever line drawings of flappers were recognized and loved by an entire generation of Americans. His girls—dressed in the flat-chested, sack-dress fashion of the time—represented the "flaming youth" of the roaring 20's.

A self-taught artist, Held also dabbled in sculpture, pottery making and novel writing.

He was born in Salt Lake City on Jan. 10, 1889. His father, John Held, Sr., had himself done some illustrating—although of a much different sort. He had illustrated the "Book of Mormon" for the Church of Christ of Latter Day Saints.

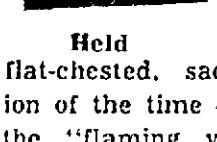

The older Held, famous bandmaster, had wanted his son to be a musician.

But the son wanted to draw and initiated his humorous art career at the Salt Lake Tribune.

In 1909 with $4 in his pocket, Held came to New York to try his luck in the big city.

His luck was good. Soon after his first flappers appeared in the old Life, a humor magazine, they caught on in startling fashion.

Judge and College Humor, other magazines of the time, were soon vying for Held's drawings, legend has it that his work was so popular that editors sent him blank checks and told him to fill in his own figure for his work.

Earlier the Reds' Pyongyang radio had said that North Korea was ready to return the pilots, the West Germans and any South Koreans who wanted to leave.

But today North Korean Col. Kim Choon Kyang told the commission that return of anyone wanting to go home "will be realized expeditiously" if the South Korean, U.S. and West German governments made a concrete response to the red proposal.

The captured airliner was piloted by Willis P. Hobbs of Vallejo, Calif., and air force Lt. Col. Howard W. McClelland of Buchanan, Mich. It was en route from Pusan, South Korea, to Seoul, when it vanished. The South Koreans charged that red agents had seized the plane and forced the pilots to fly north.

Not All Can Go See Selection Problem In College Education

BY G. K. HODENFIELD

Chicago.—The nation's educators, foreseeing colleges filled to capacity in a few years, today tackled the problem of deciding who shall be admitted and who shall be turned away.

There appeared little or no hope of finding an answer that would please everyone.

A Florida educator summed up his views:

"...Not all the students who desire to go to college can or should be admitted. Living in a democracy does not in itself confer the right to a college degree. The pressures will become so great that there can be little justification for admitting college students who are not qualified to carry college work successfully."

No Easy Way

B. Cuipepper, executive director, institutions of higher learning, board of control of Florida, Tallahassee, told the 13th conference on higher education there is no easy way to separate the wheat from the chaff. He said high school grades are probably the best single indication of a student's potential, but that other factors must be considered.

There must be new tests, he declared, to determine a student's intellectual curiosity, his creative ability, his stability and his motivation. Above all, he said, "Judgment, common sense and flexibility must prevail."

Cuipepper said the nation's college student population would double by 1970—from three to six million, at the same time that parents are demanding more and more that their children be given the best possible education.

Need New Teachers

To meet what he called the greatest challenge American education has ever faced, he said present institutions must expand and new institutions built. New teachers also must be found, he said, and new techniques and methods must be explored.

Another speaker said that states and local communities must take a searching look from every side before building new colleges and universities.

T. C. Holy of the University of California acknowledged a nationwide demand for more teachers and scientists. But he said that state and national needs in such professions should be carefully calculated before the output is expanded.

"To prepare young people for specific jobs in numbers greatly beyond these needs is wasteful of both human talents and natural resources," Holy said.

Holy suggested that before colleges and universities are planned and built it might be well to consider whether present schools are using all their facilities to best advantage.

Steinle Still 'Uncertain' Says He Has Not Made Up Mind on Seeking Senate Job

Milwaukee.—Roland J. Steinle, former justice of the Wisconsin Supreme court, said Sunday he had not made up his mind about seeking the Republican nomination for U. S. senator.

Steinle's resignation from the state's highest court became effective Sunday. He had submitted his resignation Feb. 21, saying he would consider the possibility of running for senator.

Reached at the home of a daughter, Steinle said, "Monday morning I'll begin to think about the matter."

He added, "I must give this matter a lot of thought. I may make up my mind in about a week."

He said he plans to confer with party leaders and "a lot of other people" before coming to a decision.

Party leaders have said Steinle would make a strong candidate if he decides to run. His first hurdle, if he enters the race, would be winning the GOP endorsement at the party's state convention in May.

So far only two Republicans have announced themselves as candidates for the seat now held by Sen. William Proxmire, a Democrat. They are Ray H. Dittmore, a South Milwaukee manufacturer, and James O. Onderdonk, an industrial engineer in Bloomington, Wis., who has a Madison suburb where Proxmire owns a home. Both Dittmore and Onderdonk are newcomers to statewide politics.

Cross Country Bus Rider, Fiance 'Definitely Going to Get Married'

Woman Tells Police She Doesn't Know Why She Walked Out on Scheduled Wedding

New York.—Irene Arzedi and her fiance, Joseph Pinto, told detectives at a say they are "definitely going Brooklyn police station.

to get married" despite the girl's cross-country walkout. Miss Arzedi said she had left on their scheduled wedding for "personal reasons."

Why she chose a bus ride to Los Angeles instead of marriage to Pinto, Miss Arzedi said she was not sure when she got back to New York yesterday.

"I was in a daze half the time," she said.

Others in the neighborhood poured out of pizzerias, delicatessens, and tenements to catch a glimpse of Miss Arzedi's homecoming.

After her disappearance, some New York newspapers printed front page pleas to the father of the slain 17-year-old woman to get in touch with her.

Police combed her neighborhood searching tenements from top to bottom and even dragged Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Cordry, Jr., parents of Thomas W. Cordry III, 19, although they had $150 the day she left home, across the street. The wealthy and took a Manhattan-bound subway train shortly after purchasing some cosmetics in a Brooklyn drug store.

She told newsmen that she bought a suitcase and some lingerie in a department store and then went to the port of New York authority bus terminal.

She couldn't give any reasons why she chose Los Angeles.

She just purchased a ticket on the California city and left on the bus about 10:30 Saturday night, she said.

She said that after arriving at Los Angeles last Wednesday she stayed a couple of hours, then bought a return ticket for New York.

Weight Down

A family physician who examined her last night said she was suffering from malnutrition and exhaustion.

"She said she had cake and coffee during the ride with an occasional hamburger," Dr. Alfred Janora said.

"She is very nervous and her weight is down to about 93 pounds," he said.

Miss Arzedi said: "I slept on the bus and ate at bus stations. I was too afraid to call anyone. Otherwise, I would have come home much sooner."

After a short nap at home, she appeared at the door of her family's apartment last night. Miss Arzedi and Pinto repeated their intention to get married. "When?" asked a cameraman.

"When we get time to talk ago today it became a national over our plans; then we'll decide," was their joint answer.

Parents of Victim to Aid Urge Slayer

Palo Alto, Calif.—Parents of slain high school girl and those of the Stanford University sophomore who shot her met yesterday to help the youth.

"We feel we are on the same side now," said John Bonn, father of the slain 17-year-old woman to get in touch with her.

Deena Bonn. "We cannot get the girl back. The important thing now is to help the boy."

The Bonns never before had met Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Cordry, Jr., parents of Thomas W. Cordry III, 19, although they had $150 the day she left home, across the street. The wealthy and took a Manhattan-bound subway train shortly after purchasing some cosmetics in a Brooklyn drug store.

Bonn recognized that police must prosecute young Cordry, who admitted that an "urge" led him to shoot Deena.

"But the important thing is what happens after that," Bonn said. "The problem is to save the boy."

Bonn described the meeting as "very cordial." Deena was their only child and Thomas is the Cordry's only child.

"They were concerned that they were in some way responsible for what had happened," he continued. "I told them they did not make a mistake... that they had tried their best for the boy..."

Bonn said he and his wife would meet the Cordrys again "if it is necessary to help the boy."

"It was a good thing we had the talk," he added.

The meeting was at the Bonn home.

Young Cordry drove to the Palo Alto police station Tuesday night with the body of pretty Deena in his white 1957 convertible. She had died of a bullet wound in the brain.

Swirling River Waters Still Hide 11 Bodies Of School Youngsters

Grim Hunt for Submerged Bus Ends; Battered Vehicle Dragged Ashore

Prestonsburg, Ky.—Muddy, swirling river waters yielded another victim early today as searchers prepared to lift a giant net in hopes of recovering bodies of 11 school children still missing in the nation's worst school bus tragedy.

Unshaven, sleepy-eyed townspeople stood vigil at the west Prestonsburg bridge where the giant net was spread through the river waters.

For some of the 16 families involved, the vigil continued. At least seven of them had lost more than one child and some were still among the missing.

One coal miner who lost a son summed up the general feeling of this small mountain community:

"It was the worst shock I ever had in the world."

It was the body of the miner's son, 15-year-old James Ousley, floating out a window that finally pinpointed the submerged bus in 10 feet of water.

Free of Mud

Navy divers attached cables and two bulldozers hauled the bus ashore.

Ten bodies were carried out gently, and scraped free of mud that encased them. Workers had to chop through the side of the smashed bus and shovel out mud to reach five others.

Thousands of onlookers bared their heads as a mountain preacher said a brief prayer over a loud speaker.

The bodies were taken to the Prestonsburg armory, where grief-stricken parents identified them.

Private funerals were being arranged by three funeral homes.

Search for the missing centers between the wreck scene and four miles downstream to a bridge at West Prestonsburg, where nets were stretched across the river.

Lawrence Phipps, Former Steelman, U. S. Senator, Dies

Los Angeles.—Lawrence C. Phipps, 95, an associate of Andrew Carnegie in the steel business and a former U. S. senator from Colorado, died Saturday night.

He was 18 when he joined the Carnegie company in Pittsburgh as a millhand.

When he merged with U.S. steel in 1900 he was one of its top executives. He was only 38 when he retired to Denver as one of the largest individual stockholders in the newly formed giant of the steel industry.

He was elected to the senate in 1918, reelected in 1924. Since 1931 he had devoted himself to his business investments.

Surviving are his widow; three sons, Lawrence, Allan and Gerald Phipps, all of Denver; and three daughters, Mrs. William White of Haverford, Pa., and Mrs. Van Holt Garrett and Mrs. Donald Bromfield of Denver. Funeral services will be conducted in Denver Wednesday.

Economic Health Good in Spots; Trends Need Change

BY STERLING F. GREEN

Washington—How's business? Not bad, really; lots of dollars changing hands. But not good, either, because the trends are wrong.

Unemployment is going uphill, production downhill. Signs of the promised summer recovery are not visible.

There is neither pessimism nor panic in the land. But an Associated Press survey in every state and major city suggests that the personal problems of 4½ million jobless breadwinners—probably approaching 5 million by now—are sending chill ripples throughout the economy.

For this series of reports of the economic state of the nation, AP men interviewed a cross-section—bankers and jobless janitors, chamber of commerce boosters and corner storekeepers. Here's a sampling of what they heard:

"They don't look scared, just a little surprised that getting another job is tougher than it used to be," said an employment office director at Little Rock, Ark.

"The hospital bills are killing us. I don't know if I can save the house. Last month I had a hell of a time meeting the payments," said a former $9,000-a-year aircraft worker, laid off in Los Angeles.

"I think we're through the roughest period of repossessions, but if 800 more miners are laid off we'll have a different story," a bank credit officer, declared at Butte, Mont.

No Real Slump

"A leveling of the boom but no real downturn. . . . Unemployment is up but so is employment. . . . Iowa is a bright spot. . . . the recession hasn't reached here yet. . . . When the drought ended a healthy charge shot through our economy, said bankers and businessmen in Arizona, Florida, Iowa, New Mexico and South Dakota.

This is a recession, in short, which has many faces. Factory output is down but profits haven't skidded badly. The banking and insurance industries have seldom had it so good. Total consumer income is high, retail sales are holding up well. The utilities are still expanding even while the railroads are depositing pools of jobless men at every division point from Portland to Portland.

(After a prolonged boom, the U. S. economy has dipped. How grim is the general picture? Here is the first of a series of articles about the nation's economic health, based on a country-wide Associated Press survey.)

By contrast with the hardest-hit towns, there are cities and a few whole states where the recession is mostly something you read about in the newspapers. The streets are full, stores are busy.

One Charlotte, N. C., banker remarked:

"A lot of these business fellows are just crying in their caviar."

No region has widespread hardship. The bulk of unemployment is clotted in a few great industrial states and in a handful of depressed industries. But the latter reach deep into the mill towns, mountain hamlets and backwoods.

At a recent estimate, New York had 426,000 idle. Pennsylvania had 435,000. California 312,000. Michigan had 325,000, or 11 per cent of its whole working force.

Draw Jobless Pay

Probably two out of three of the idle had some income: They were getting "UC"—unemployment compensation. Almost three million Americans were drawing jobless pay in February. An uncounted number had exhausted their "UC" and, still without work, had gone on relief. In steel and autos, supplemental employer-paid benefits have prolonged income.

A 30-year-old Cleveland bookkeeper in the UC line was bitter: "Do you know what it's like to lose your income suddenly, to try to live on $39 a week? I've even tried to get a job as a stock boy at the grocery. They didn't need me."

It is not just a big-city phenomenon. From Maine to the deep south, the eastern seaboard is dotted with closed textile mills and apparel factories working part time, or not at all.

Similar trouble in the sawmills and logging camps can be traced from the Carolinas to the Pacific northwest.

Slack demand and falling prices for copper, lead and zinc

Fewer Factory Jobs

But the big job trouble is in the "hard goods" manufacturing industries, backbone of American industrial might. Somewhere, somehow, nearly 1½ million factory jobs have evaporated in 13 months.

It would be easy, but inaccurate, to make the auto industry out to be the prime villain of the piece. This is the overwhelmingly dominant job producer—and so far it's fancy-finished, slightly higher-priced 1958 models haven't sold well.

When Detroit suffers, a lot of other places have more than sympathetic pains. The problem of auto employment fluctuation, once a Detroit specialty, has been exported to Buffalo, Los Angeles, Cleveland—wherever the industry has spotted its enormously efficient new plants.

Five new tires go unsold with every new car that isn't built. Akron feels the pinch, and so does Miami, Okla. Synthetic fiber goes into cars as well as stockings—Du Pont has laid off hundreds in the south. Toolmakers in Cleveland, steel workers in Pennsylvania, iron miners in Minnesota, glass makers in several cities, all feel the pinch of a disappointing auto year.

The housing slump spread similar widening circles of joblessness. When new-home starts in 1957 dropped below one million—for the first time in years, thousands of men who make refrigerators, home laundries, garbage disposers and furniture stopped getting pay-checks.

Defense Spending

But if housing and autos are

Two Popular Novels New in Public Library

Two new novels, one already a best seller and the other probably destined to be one, have been added this week to the Appleton public library, are on display now and will be released for circulation Friday. The top seller, "Anatomy of a Murder" by Robert Traver is his fourth book about Upper Peninsula people who have come in conflict with the law. The author is a justice of the Michigan supreme court. "Maggie-Now," Betty Smith's latest novel, probably will become a best seller if only by virtue of the author's name. The book, however, has drawn mixed reactions from reviewers.

Other Fiction

Other fiction additions are "Gold in the Sky" by Max Cato, "Dunbar's Cove" by Borden Deal, "Another Man's Murder" by Mignon G. Eberhart, "Rio Grande Deadline" by Allen Elston, "The Catalyst" by Kenneth Iowe, "Wilderness of Spring" by Edgar Pangborn.

Washington clamped an economy lid on military spending last summer, the mighty aircraft industry nosed into a steep dive and its far-flung suppliers did ground loops.

The lid is now off in that area now, thanks mainly to Russia's Sputniks. But how soon can the new contracts be translated into actual jobs on factory floors?

"Not until next fall, for the most part," says a California plane builder.

After the recent announcement that total joblessness jumped 1,100,000 in January, the greatest one-month increase since the depression, President Eisenhower issued a chins-up economic statement predicting unemployment will decline in March.

It was a fairly safe forecast. Never since World War II has joblessness failed to drop when the weather opened up for farm, construction and road work.

But the improvement must be substantial or it won't mean a thing. The average February-to-March decline in job-hunters has been 200,000. In other words, unemployment must drop by 200,000 next month just to stay even with the seasonal ebb and flow within the working force.

"The Virtuous Women of Pont Clery" by Flora Sandstrom, and "The Marriage" by Mona Williams.

New non-fiction includes "An Epitaph for Dixie" by Harry Ashmore, an appraisal of the south by a southerner; "Best Television Plays, 1957," a collection; "The Laugh Makers" by William Cahn, a pictorial history of American comedians; "How to Make Ceramics" by Gertrude Engel, a handbook for craftsmen.

"How to Win in the Chess Endings" by I. A. Horowitz and "Logical Chess. Move by Move" by Irving Chernev, both for chess addicts; "Pakistan" by Keith Callard, a political study; "Gladstone" by Francis Birrell, a biography; "Peter Freuchen's Book of the Seven Seas" by Peter Freuchen, history, battles, travel and mysteries of the oceans.

About Parachutists

"Into the Silk" by Ian Mackerrsey, an account of parachutists; "Mineral Nutrition and the Balance of Life" by Frank Gilbert, what is needed in an adequate diet; "A History of the Dollar" by Arthur Nussbaum, a history of the American monetary system; "The Mormons" by Thomas O'Dea, a survey of the religious denomination in America.

"Jesus in His Homeland" by Sherman Johnson, a study of Jesus in the light of His geographical, cultural and religious background; "Reality and Prayer" by John Maggee, the place of prayer in life; "Dimensions of Character" by Ernest Ligon, results of the author's character research project; "Mysteries of Science" by John Rowland, still unsolved phenomena.

Dorothy Wilding's Lifetime Spent Making Pictures of Famous Faces

London — A shy young man walked into Dorothy Wilding's photographic studio one day and had his picture taken.

The day was 30 years ago and the young man later became the Duke of Kent, who died in a World war II plane crash.

Looking back, Dorothy Wilding mused: "That was my first royal portrait. Some years later he came in for a picture with his fiancée, Princess Marina of Greece."

Plump, dynamic and in her late fifties, Miss Wilding has spent a lifetime making pictures of the world's famous faces. Since that first royal sitting, kings, queens and princes have come to her from all over the world as have the great names in politics, the arts, the theater and high society.

At her discreet Mayfair studio the telephone may ring anytime from Buckingham palace. Seven times she has been summoned to photograph Queen Elizabeth II.

Family Picture: The first time was a family picture at Buckingham palace on the coronation of King George VI in 1937. When Elizabeth became engaged to Prince Philip she sent for Miss Wilding to picture them together.

And when she acceded to the throne, the queen commissioned a Wilding portrait to adorn Britain's postage stamps. Princess Margaret, Queen Elizabeth the queen mother, the Duke of Gloucester, Princess Alexandra, the princess royal, all have appeared before the Wilding camera.

She was all set to photograph the Duke of Windsor in full regalia during his brief reign as King Edward VIII but he gave up the throne before a sitting could be arranged.

Some years later he kept the appointment at Miss Wilding's Madison avenue studio in New York.

"When we knew he was coming I put the studio girls through a special course on how to curtsy," Miss Wilding said in an interview.

"Sitting alone in front of the camera he seemed quite sad. But as soon as the duchess walked into the studio his eyes lit up like magic."

Many of Miss Wilding's most famous portraits have been taken during her frequent trips across the Atlantic.

Barbara Hutton came in for a picture when she was engaged to her first husband.

"She must have liked it because eventually she sent all her husbands along."

Went to Sleep: Elder Statesman Bernard Baruch was the only sitter who ever went to sleep before Miss Wilding's camera.

"Such a charming old boy. He came along feeling drowsy after lunch. While I was adjusting the lights he dozed off. His secretary nudged him gently and he woke up and apologized."

One of the most striking portraits on the wall of the Mayfair studio is that of playwright George Bernard Shaw.

"It was 25 years ago now."

He came to us with the reputation of being a difficult man to photograph. But the bevy of beautiful girls we had here then soon broke down his resistance to posing. He said he never realized what fun it was to be photographed."

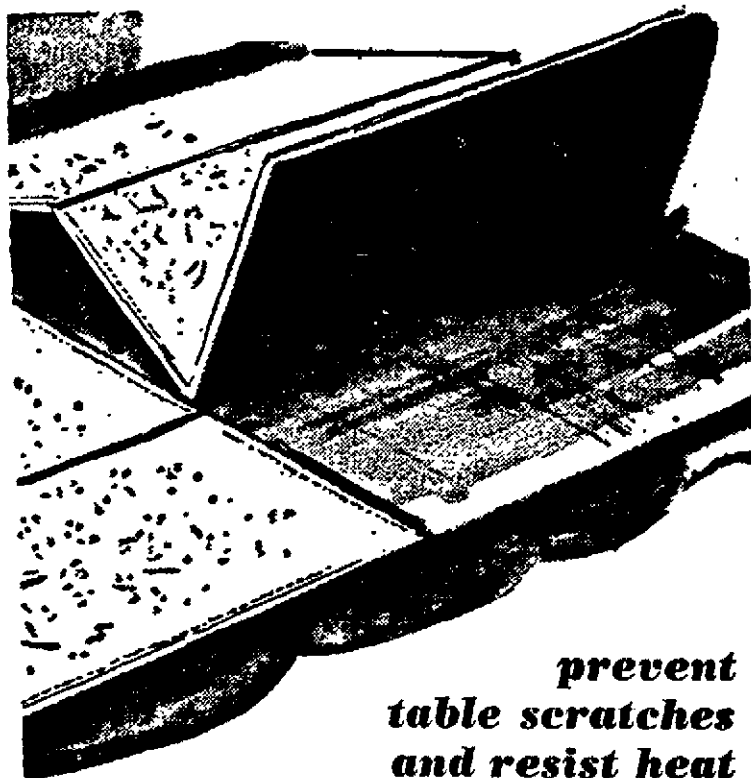

Author Somerset Maugham was firm on one point. "Don't take the wrinkles out of my face," he ordered.

Not All Ideology

The big rally held in Washington to enlist support in selling Congress and the American people on President Eisenhower's whopping big request for foreign aid should raise no eyebrows. Such appeals to the emotions in the financing of government have been going on for a long time in this country.

Jay Cooke, according to author Stewart Holbrook, brought "to the management of national finance, a wholly new technique — the drive. With little modification it has been used ever since." Cooke first had considerable personal financial success in the promotion of canals and railroads and with loans to the government during the Mexican war. Then, soon after the start of the Civil war, he undertook to sell a large bond issue to finance the war effort of the state of Pennsylvania. In no time he moved to Washington and organized a country-wide campaign to sell federal war bonds to the public. Patriotism, promoted by full page ads and brass bands, was the theme. Writes Holbrook: "His salesmen worked on commission and were not turned loose until they had been thoroughly indoctrinated with the equivalent of pep talks and had learned at least ten ways of making non-buyers look and feel like traitors. Jay Cooke, in short, set the American... eagle screaming for money."

Similar methods were used during our subsequent wars to finance the military needs in other ways than through higher taxes. However, Congress lacked an amendment to the mutual security act forbidding the International Cooperation Administration from using any of its appropriation to sell the idea of foreign aid to the American people. Thus, the independent, voluntary type of campaign now being waged was born.

Obviously any American has the right to organize to help sell government programs, and the administration has the right to bolster such groups with speeches and personal appearances of the president.

But, as in the days of Jay Cooke, ideology is not the only commodity involved. Foreign aid not only may be useful, as the administration contends, in staving off a shooting war; it offers a considerable market for agriculture surpluses and the products of many industries. Some of those campaigning so hard to back the foreign aid proposals, therefore, are actually working on a type of commission, too.

Foreign aid, in the proportions being spent today, is actually a type of subsidy of agriculture and some industries. It may be important both to aid military forces in other countries and to assist their economies, and it may be important in keeping the economy of the United States high when recession looms. But the bombardment we may now expect in favor of the foreign aid bill, and some of the opposition, too, will not include all the real reasons for approval or dissent.

Economics of the Cow

A news story recently cited the state-federal agricultural statistics office as authority for the statement that the average price of Wisconsin dairy cows moved up this winter to the highest level in five years, to about $205.

Those persons who have heard the distressed cries of dairy farming spokesmen about the condition of the milk and dairy produce market lately might have found that report anomalous. How could dairy cows be increasing in value, when their product is in surplus and there is so much apprehension about government policies reducing the artificially supported price level of milk?

The situation perhaps illustrates some of the complexities of dairy industry economics, and the hazards of making snap judgments thereon.

Actually there are many more factors than the price of milk which are effective in setting the value of a cow, and some of them actually may be more important than a percentage movement up or down in the hundredweight market quotations for milk.

Among them is the fact that the cow is a meat animal, as well as a producer of butterfat. Meat prices have been good lately. Cows sold at this time of the year normally will calve in the spring. Veal prices have been fair to good.

There also has been a profitable market for Wisconsin milking stock as foundations for dairy herds in other parts of the country. It is one of the ironies of the Wisconsin milk market problem that Wisconsin dairymen, to a considerable extent, have provided the stock for the flourishing dairy industries of other states, notably in the South, which today are increasingly shutting off important markets to Wisconsin milk.

Finally, in some of the important markets of the country where there are artificially high and government controlled prices for fluid milk, dairymen can afford to buy their replacement animals in Wisconsin and avoid producing their own young stock. California is perhaps the best example of that practice. California milk prices are such that dairymen there can afford to bid strongly for Wisconsin cows.

The skill and the reputation of Wisconsin milk cow breeders, indeed, have been such that Wisconsin income from the sale of cows has become an important factor in the state's agricultural economy, although it is an element that the casual city observer in Wisconsin infrequently notes.

The Violators of Language

One of the irritants of the times is the expropriation by some of the less deserving elements of our community of the function of language making and development.

The language of a people ought to spring from the usage and the needs of the people and their literary spokesmen. That has been the way of the history of language since primitive man. But today there is a new force in linguistics — the bureaucratic servant of the public.

We now see in the cold type of journals that ought to be better edited such clumsy and hapless words as "implement," as a common verb, when it is actually a word of limited application that should be used with extreme care — indeed, in the average purposes of spoken communication should not occur at all. We hear our teachers and our social service workers talk about "resource persons." In the last few months our conservation service at Madison has joined the parade of word invention. We now hear constantly about "wetlands." The conservation commission wants them. The legislature is helping to pass budgets for them.

We find ourselves wondering whether the typical senator or assemblyman uses such words when he reports to his people back in his town hall.

Does he explain that he voted to buy "wetlands," or does he simply say, as we used to say, that the conservation department wants "marshes" under protection for the benefit of ducks and pheasants and muskrats and the rest?

One of the sorry signs of our times is the discarding of old and meaningful and expressive words, for the stilted, sterile, cold language of the bureaucrat who has become one of the important forces of our times through sheer numbers.

Yet we ought to confess that the journalists of our day, who ought to be trained to use words for the precision tools that they are, have become the worst offenders. We see press dispatches now that refer to "personnel," when they mean "employees," that employ "utilize" for the simpler more communicative "use," and that insist upon the bulky circumlocution "took under advisement" when they mean that a court, or a state board or other body is considering a matter.

Oppose Proposed Road at Kaukauna

Editor, Post-Crescent:

At a meeting of the Kaukauna common council, at 7 p.m., March 4th, the aldermen will decide on a new road which in the writers' opinion, will be for the sole benefit of one individual. This road will cut through the Outagamie County School grounds, and come out on Wisconsin avenue. This will involve a steep grade, retaining walls, cyclone fencing, and a new sidewalk to the County Normal School.

The entire cost of this will be paid for out of tax dollars. One engineer estimated the cost at least $10,000. The county will not have to pay a dollar. The city has placed $15,000.00 in the budget for 1958 for road improvements. After paying for this road, how much will be left for the rest of the streets? ? ? ?

It will create a new danger to children going and coming from school, as this road will come out in the middle of this block. Also, due to the steep grade, cars and trucks may find it hard to stop in wet and icy weather. It will, also, add to the heavy traffic which now exists on Wisconsin avenue.

It is the writers' opinions that this is being pushed through as quietly as possible.

Dr. E. J. Rolinske

Every Tax Evader Is an Enemy Of Those Persons Who Pay the Bill

(Copyright, 1958)

BY GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Egbert White, vice president of "Business International," makes a point in a letter he addressed to me that needs discussion from the standpoint of the taxpayer, because when the government in Washington spends money, it comes from us, the taxpayers. Therefore, if there are two kinds of citizens, those who pay taxes and those who evade taxes, the evaders have a double unfair advantage over the honest Johns. The evaders not only keep their money but they also force the rest of us to pay more than we should.

So every tax-evader is a personal enemy of every taxpayer and let us face it that way. Egbert White says, however, that it is unfair to state the case as bluntly as all that. He gives several reasons, of which I shall discuss what there is room for: "That it is U. S. foreign policy, supported by both parties, to encourage private investment abroad."

"That private investment abroad is greatly increased if profits earned abroad can be reinvested abroad without paying the U. S. tax of 52 per cent."

U. S. Industry Raided True. But what has that to do with the basic proposition that those who do pay taxes are penalized because the tax-evaders and tax-avoiders have discovered gimmicks for operating without paying any taxes at all? Furthermore, some of this money comes back into the United States to raid American industries in such anonymous forms and in association with obscurely held money, that nobody can trace what the true ownership is.

There is another point. Much of the profits of American investments abroad is kept abroad and comes back as manufactured products, such as British Ford cars, Vauxhall cars, Opel cars, etc. The European-manufactured car, financed by American money, is beginning to make a dent in the American market at a time when the American automobile industry is sick and large numbers of workers are being laid off. I cite this as one example; there are many others.

The fact that our government approves of this inequity does not make it right. I would like to know how much of our huge investment in Canada has come back to the United States to be taxed; how much of it has been kept for permanent reinvestment in countries that benefit by imperial preference; how much of it finds its way back into the form of manufactured goods to undersell American products in the American market. I have seen no full figures on this subject anywhere, nor do I believe that they exist, just as no full data exist on the number of American accounts in Swiss banks or in Liechtenstein corporations which keep their money in Swiss banks or in Bahamian or Liberian or Venezuelan banks.

In this connection, I wish to recommend to those who are interested this book: "Tax Factors in Basing International Business Abroad," published by the Law School of Harvard University. It is the most thorough study extant on the subject of beating taxes by finding the shelter of a tax haven abroad.

An Example

One of the cases cited in this book is United States v. Klein which is current and in many ways fascinating. Let me quote:

"... The defendants organized a number of Cuban and Panamanian corporations which ostensibly purchased Canadian whiskey for sale in the United States. The whiskey was invoiced to a base company but was shipped directly from the Canadian distillery to American buyers. The difference between the purchase price in Canada and the sales price in the United States was accumulated in a base company, in spite of the fact that no sales, promotional, or administrative functions were performed by the base companies, Judge Sugarman, in dismissing the first four counts of the indictment, declared:

"(A) reasonable person could not conclude that those corporations were a sham. They observed corporate formalities in their structure and functioning; they billed the American distributors for the whiskey; they collected for it; they paid their suppliers for it; they maintained active bank accounts in Cuba, New York and Canada in their own names and deposited therein and withdrew therefrom large sums in many transactions; in fact they did everything normally to be expected in the sale of over thirty-eight million dollars worth of whiskey at wholesale in the three years of their operation."

But what about the taxes? Who paid them?

Cavalry Orator Coming to Speak

73 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of March 3, 1879.

General Judson Kilpatrick the Cavalry Orator is to lecture in Bertschy Hall next Tuesday evening March 11th. His lecture is entitled "Incidents and Battle Scenes of the Rebellion."

The General as an orator needs no recommendation. The large houses he draws speak for themselves. His subject is one that admits of the full display of his oratorical powers and is one that always is new. In his recitals of war scenes he carries his audience back to those dark days and into the very battles so that each listener feels himself a participant.

To fail to hear Gen. Kilpatrick is to lose a rare opportunity. Reserved seats are at Foster's Drug Store.

W. M. Singler, state president of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool, left Appleton that morning to start on a week's speaking tour.

John A. Pierre, Jr., Appleton, received a Purple Heart medal for meritorious service overseas during World War I. Pierre was a member of Co. A., 150th Machine Gun battalion, 42nd Division.

G. A. Sell, county agent, noticed a decided increase during the week of the rail strike in the demand for farm bulletins dealing with the making of various dairy products in the home.

Four Appleton golfers let the urge get the best of them and went to Green Lake where they played 36 holes over the Green Lake course. They were Elmer Fumal, Jack Fumal, Leo Murphy and Bobby McGuire, the latter professional at Whiting course, Stevens Point. They reported the Green Lake course in fair condition.

The Girl Reserves of Appleton High school were to present a program at River-view sanatorium Tuesday. Miss Josephine Freude was general chairman.

Sen. Kennedy's Visit to State a Political Test

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts, who will come to Milwaukee to be the principal orator at the Wisconsin Democrats' fund raising dinner in May, is actively and carefully campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960.

Wyngaard

His appearance at a strategic event of the Wisconsin Democratic party machine is quite in character with his present task — of convincing the party managers that he will do as a candidate. He has been winning the popularity contests, but as this chronicler learned during a recent look-see in the national capital, the party bosses have kept their own counsel thus far.

Wisconsin, moreover, has an early presidential primary. If Kennedy can cement enough alliances here he will be able to enter the Wisconsin primary, and if successful here, have some visible credentials for the pre-convention campaign two years hence.

Meanwhile his selection by the state party committee is a brilliant one, for its own interests. No national personality today is quite as hot as this young man, and he is likely to get some extra $25 dinner tickets sold for the state party's campaign chest as a consequence.

The observant and critical citizen, contemplating the budget crisis in the post-office department that now appears to be chronic, may wonder how much the mails might be speeded or the department's financial problems relieved if members of the congress paid their postage bills as their constituents are required to do.

One Wisconsin congressman recently told me, without a sign of embarrassment, and in fact, rather in pride, that he dispatches weekly some 31,000 "newsletters" by franked mail to his constituents in a single district. That figures out to nearly $1,000 a week in franked postage, at a modest estimate of the cost per piece.

There are signs that easy going Rep. William K. Van Pelt of Fond du Lac, incumbent in the historically Republican sixth district, may find the opposition somewhat firmer in the campaign this year.

Democrats show every intention of making a more serious fight in that lower Fox River Valley territory they formerly tended to forfeit in campaigns. Leading prospect for the party nomination against Van Pelt is James Magellas of Fond du Lac, an organization favorite.

Wisconsin Republicans in Washington are watching with eager interest and approval the approach to his new duties of Claude J. Jasper, the new chairman of the Republican state organization.

Jasper regards his principal job as one of bringing together the divergent elements of the party and to remove the stigma of factionalism which has damaged it in recent campaigns. Getting Walter J. Kohler and Glenn R. Davis, the bitter rivals of the 1957 special primary election for senator, to sit down in friendly talk in a Green Bay hotel room a fortnight ago was one of the first steps in that direction. By common consent of the experienced officeholders in the party, that first stage was managed nicely.

Best sign of the vigorous campaign for renomination and reelection that is being made by veteran Sen. Jess Miller of Richland County is his revival of the almost forgotten proposal to get Frank Lloyd Wright to build a scenic bridge across the Wisconsin river. Realists know that such a consummation is unlikely, but it is sure fire publicity.

When J. R. Durfee left the Wisconsin public service commission chairmanship to take a seat on the Civil Aeronautics board in Washington, he specified that he wanted to appoint one old friend as a kind of assistant and counselor in the big new job. Durfee now has his man, old friend Richard O'Melia of Rhine lander, member of the well known northern Wisconsin legal family. O'Melia is chief counsel of the agency, one of the most important assignments in the administrative services of the national government.

Potomac Fever

Commissioner Mack, under fire in the FCC probe, says—he—won't quit. He claims he did absolutely nothing wrong and if he had it all to do over again, he wouldn't.

Ike has "an understanding" with Nixon to take over in times of illness. This is not to be confused with the one Sherman Adams has to take over in times of health.

Michigan's Gov. Williams says Ike is trying to fight the recession with platitudes. Democrats, on the other hand, are trying to swamp it with gratitude.

Republican Congressman Keating says we must be first to the moon. Republicans think it would be awful to arrive second and have some Russian say, "Go on back. Business is lousy here, too."

Political approaches differ. You wouldn't catch Dick Nixon taking his wife 3,000 miles for a beauty treatment. He's send her to the super-market with a basket — and a photographer.

Check on Funds

State Auditor Asks Better Town Bookkeeping to Prevent Shortages

A call for better bookkeeping methods in the finances of towns has been issued by State Auditor J. Jay Kelher.

Citing several instances which indicated cash shortages, two of which had existed for five and 14 years, respectively, Kelher outlined some simple methods of preventing similar occurrences in town finances. Records of some towns are audited by the state or public accounting firms upon request of the town board. Often the audits are caused by an indication of some irregularity in town affairs, Kelher said.

Shortages which may be disclosed by such audits may involve subsequent lawsuits or litigation which are expensive, Kelher pointed out. He added that efforts to prevent such cash shortages would result in a conservation or saving of taxpayer's funds. Thus his suggestions may be helpful to town boards, the auditor said. He issued a letter containing the suggestions and sent it to each of the 1,270 town board chairmen in the state.

Lack of Records
One of the main points of Kelher's suggestions is that town treasurers often do not issue receipts of record for receipts of town collections other than taxes. He recommended that a formal receipt be issued in every case pointing out that a simple receipt form in triplicate can be purchased at most stationery supply outlets. Kelher suggested that one copy be given the person making the payment, one to the town clerk and one for the town treasurer as a part of his official records.

The state auditor indicated that a large part of the trouble in town funds was the simple lack of adequate records. Two sections of the state statutes relate to the responsibilities of town boards of audit. Although it is not expected that the town board make an actual audit, Kelher said, it is felt that "great care must be exercised in settling accounts with the town treasurer."

Kelher suggested seven rules for board chairmen to follow to avoid any possible discrepancies or shortages in town funds:

Suggestions Offered
1. Insist that the treasurer's cashbook and the town clerk's record be balanced at the end of each fiscal year.
2. Investigate any difference between the cash balance shown in the treasurer's cash-book and the clerk's record.
3. Require the treasurer to submit written proof between his cashbook balance and the town bank account balance at the end of the fiscal year. This proof or reconciliation could be stated as the bank balance with the outstanding checks deducted compared to the cash-book balance plus the undeposited town cash.
4. This proof or reconciliation should be a part of the treasurer's records and the outstanding checks should be listed in detail. The amount of undeposited cash reported should be physically verified by actual count made by the town board.
5. Examine bank statements and canceled checks for the year under review. Canceled checks can be compared with the treasurer's recorded payments and outstanding checks at the beginning of each year to verify the checks outstanding at the end of the year.
6. If personal property taxes are kept by the town for collection, require submission of a written and detailed list of the individual items which have not been collected. Make certain that prompt action is taken to enforce collection of any delinquent taxes.
7. Inform the state auditor's office immediately of any difficulty in obtaining a settlement of the treasurer's accounts.

Kelher concluded his suggestions to town board chairmen by pointing out that these procedures are required to show the exercise of proper care by the town board, not as a reflection on the integrity of town treasurers anywhere.

Young Hobby Club With Thimbles and Jar Lid Nimble Fingers Make Music

BY CAPPY DICK
With a couple of thimbles and the tin top from a jar you can have a good time tapping out musical rhythm. The success you have with this stunt depends largely on the nimbleness of your fingers. Place the thimbles on your forefinger and middle finger as in Figure 2. The sketches labeled A, B, C and D show how to hold the lid in one palm and how to tap it with the thimbles on the other hand. Note the difference in the positions of the fingers in A, B, C and D. You will discover that if you change the number of fingers touching the lid as you tap with the thimbles you will alter the tone. The fewer fingers touching the lid, the more resonance there will be. That's how to get different tones. With practice you will find that by rapidly changing the fingers touching the lid you can play simple rhythmic tunes. One of the easiest ways to practice is to imitate the clatter of a horse's hoofs.

will not give entirely satisfactory results because the lining somewhat deadens the resonance of the metal. The equipment is shown in Figure 1.

and the kind of jar lid you use. It should be of thin tin, the kind of lid that is on a peanut butter jar, for example. Remove the cardboard lining, if there is one. The top from a fruit jar, if lined with glass,

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with a new-healing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery. In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinking) took place. Most amazing of all — results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or enema form under the name Preparation H. # Pay TV May be Long Way Off If Public Has Anything to Say

But Controlled Experiments May be Held by Communication Agency

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Washington — Subscription television, let those Wisconsin residents who have worried about it be assured, is probably a long way off.

In the offices of the Federal Communications commission, which rules the communications network of the country, there is a feeling that after five years of largely idle discussion of the topic there probably ought to be some practical experiments in "pay TV," as the idea is popularly named.

But in the weeks since the FCC has invited experimental applications from the industry, not a single proposal has been received. Indeed, reports Chairman John C. Doerfer, there isn't even a solid rumor about an application.

Now congress is stepping in to prevent even experimental work on subscription television.

Wants Deferment

A committee of the house of representatives has formally asked the FCC to defer any such study and experimentation.

In the present Washington climate, such a request is tantamount to law—and especially since the members of congress in their individual capacities are showing no enthusiasm whatever for the idea of pay television as they are pelted by barrages of station-inspired protests from their constituents.

Doerfer says the FCC has concluded it has jurisdiction to regulate subscription television, although the law may not be altogether clear to some critics.

It has ruled, in effect, that experimentation might be in the public interest. The chairman of the regulatory organization offered his own view that American people, owners of some 40,000,000 television sets, ought to be permitted to choose between standard television fare and subscription service and that the only way a choice could be made was to invite the industry to show what it had in mind in the way of pay television.

Controlled Test

Such an experiment would be a "controlled" one, probably in a few cities in the country. Measures would be taken to protect the public, according to the FCC idea as explained by its chief official. The risk of the experiment must be taken by the industry, the FCC made clear.

But all that is academic now, and probably will be for some time.

Public opposition against the idea of subscription television is so great, and the congressional antennae picking up public sentiment are so sensitive, that the whole plan will be junked indefinitely.

Congressional reactions to the idea are impressive for their unanimity. They show the pressure of public protest—in a curious way.

Some congressmen report getting protest mail in huge sacks. One man said he has had 10,000 letters thus far, which he noted was greater than on any other public issue since former President Truman sacked Gen. MacArthur.

Other men in nearby congressional offices report only small handfuls of letters from constituents — suggesting that the mail barrage is inspired by local television stations. Some of them have not yet acted. But they can at any time, as the congressmen realize, and they are not anxious to be on the receiving end of such mail deluges in a campaign year.

Some Support

There is a smattering of support for the idea of subscription television, however, from persons who are dissatisfied with the fare offered by commercially sponsored programs. Heart of the opposition appears to be the fear that subscription TV will draw away the talent that makes the presently "free" programs.

Chairman Doerfer of the powerful FCC came to Washington in 1953, after serving as chairman of the most important of the regulatory agencies of the Wisconsin state government, the public service commission. His Wisconsin experience served in good stead, but the federal agency is considerably greater in fiscal and jurisdictional size, and in the nature of

England's Threats Like Boy Whistling in Dark, Bob Says

London — I suppose that what's going on here right now is carrying a small stick and speaking loudly, but I don't quite like the sound of it or the size of the stick.

In a very recent white paper, Duncan Sandys, the defense secretary, has rendered a ringing report that if Russia attacks in Europe, Britain (and I suppose NATO) will follow an old family tradition and fire back—but with bombs, says Sandys, even if Europe is attacked by conventional weapons.

The leaders say that this is a strong deterrent to a Russian war, but I don't exactly admire the tune of the whistle in the dark. There are times to bluff and times to call bluffs, but loud bragging about my brother-can-lick-your-brother sometimes results in somebody getting there fustiest with the mostest, brother. (I think I've run dry of my hyperbole here, and will proceed in English.)

Brother Sandys claims the balance of power has not been upset by Russia's remarkable progress in outer space, and that "the over-all superiority of the west is likely to increase rather than diminish with the introduction of medium-range missiles."

Accurate Missiles

He also allows as how "it will be several years before Russia can complete the development of an accurate intercontinental missile and produce it in sufficient numbers, and that offensive missiles will be cancelled out by defensive ones."

He goes on to say that it will be necessary to introduce the human element into missiles so that the guided rocket will become a form of human-manned aircraft again.

In the meantime, the services get a raise and the hall Britannia department will prepare to rule the waves east of Suez where a man can raise a cliché. This is currently described by the Daily Mail as the one policy which has any hope of producing an "understanding and a start to disarmament when the summit talks take place."

To my uncluttered North Carolina brain, all this sounds more like a little boy whistling as he drives the cow home past the graveyard, in the hope that the spooks won't grab him. It also sounds like the Maginot line versus battleship kind of thinking that gave the Germans such a fast jump on Europe. As a poker player, the first thing I ever learned was not to estimate the strength of an opponent's hand, but the power of my own—and the faint hope of catching an inside straight or a fifth heart for a flush does not match a guy with two kings showing.

Upward and Onward

That "overall superiority of the west is likely to increase" bit sounds awful dicey to me.

When you have the time...will you have the money?

HOW OFTEN have you thought about the things you would like to do... if you had the time and the money? Perhaps you would like to travel, catch up on your fishing or gardening, or do any number of things you've never had time to do, such as taking part in civic or other activities.

Today, your chances of living to enjoy a long and vigorous retirement are better than ever. What is more, they are improving every day, thanks to modern medical science. So it is highly probable that you will have the time.

But the big question is: will you have the money? The time to start planning for adequate retirement income to meet your needs, hopes and ambitions during sunset years is now.

The first step in such a plan is to figure out, from your present life insurance, pension plans, investments and Social Security, how much income you will have.

Metropolitan Representatives are trained and equipped to help you compute that figure. They will show you step-by-step how you can supplement it to provide more adequate financial security during your retirement years.

A Metropolitan Field-man will be pleased to explain how you can add an extra $100, $200 or more each month to your income after you retire with a custom-made Retirement Plan.

Of course, such a plan has life insurance provisions to give added protection for your family now... and it is always comforting to know that the cash and loan values in a Metropolitan retirement plan can be used for unforeseen contingencies.

The sooner you start on a sound retirement program the better... and the lower the premium. Call your Metropolitan Representative today, and give him a chance to show that...

Pegler Debunks Old Story of Ginmill

Says Hangers-on in Broadway Bar Didn't Write Classics While Tipsy

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York — A gush of nostalgic ooze about an old ginmill called Bleek's, said to have been a social annex of the Herald Tribune editorial department, reminds me to reflect today that I was in this place once, about 30 years ago. I have a robust recollection of a stench and of a determined abandon affected by a few dissolute and pathetic sick men who were bucking for the shabby fame that lingers faintly after booze-fighters when their wives have followed them alone to the grave. My father was a great rewrite man and reporter on the H-H and I believe he has told me that he was in and out of Bleek's for some dramas and cheese because after the diaspora of our old Park row, each paper had its own unofficial dump and, Bleek's was to the H-T as Carroll's Key club under Brooklyn bridge was to the two Worlds.

Not Many Boozers But not many of us were boozers, although some idlers with time to kill between jobs became quaint regulars until they could latch on as deputies, consultants and research assistants in the jungles of the New Deal. The H-T's playground was infested with theatrical press-agents because the plant is just off Broadway and some of this riff-raff acquired a counterfeit celebrity as literary fellows through vox pop letters which the drama loafers planted in the Sunday sections to spare themselves wear and tear. Notwithstanding hearsay, drunks were not geniuses able to bat out classics as long as there were office boys to prop them up. A few excellent, middle-aged reporters and rewrite men on the Worlds clunked in solid shots of straight liquor at Perry's little bar off the lobby, but the pressure was very hard and this was their toddy. I never knew a man who could produce beautiful prose while drunk. Bachelor cubs in from the out-back of the Mississippi valley sometimes did get screaming on experimental synthetics in the early phase of prohibition. But most of us presently were diverted from a Fate Worse than Death by the gentle influence of A Good Woman. Few among the hundreds I have known could write anything but straight-away and the rubbish that we praised to one another in eager trade-lust seldom was anything better than feature stuff. President Eisenhower might do almost as well, on a clear day. A few dirty-book novelists came out of the stew to get recognized as authors by the squalid standards of the hard-back reviewers. But on belated inspection today, their great works turn out to be mere impudence, at best.

One series dealing with Bleek's tries to have it that Harold Ross, the late editor of the New Yorker, abhorred vulgarity and was a stickler for minute truth. If you care, then

The mythology of the H-T's padded cell offers us some few practical, practicing newspapermen. But the "celebrities" and "immortals" were drunken loafers who wrote for magazines read by only their own likes and yearning rubes on the faculties of schools of journalism who think This Was the Life.

But I have to allow that the current appearance of the H-T, including a weird attempt to handle Wall Street in the style of Joe E. Lewis, has me wondering whether they have moved their office down to Bleek's or moved the gin-mill upstairs. (Copyright, 1958)

A New Fox Cities Street and highway map, the first of its kind printed, is presented to Clarence Hammond, right, director of the Fox Valley Regional Planning commission, by Maurice Cartier, business manager of the Post-Crescent. The map was ordered from a New Jersey firm by the Post-Crescent and is available to the public at the Appleton and Neenah-Menasha offices at a nominal fee. (Post-Crescent Photo)

New Street and Highway Map Of Fox Cities Available

A new street and highway map of the Fox Cities, the first of its kind printed, has been made available to area businessmen and residents on a cost basis as another public service by the Post-Crescent. The map measures 22 by 34 inches and was prepared by a New Jersey mapping firm from maps furnished by the engineering departments of the various municipalities. In two colors, the map shows existing streets and connecting highways, and is cross-indexed and keyed for easy location of any particular place. Points of interest are shown in a table with numbers to correspond with their location on the map. Included are such places as the Institute of Paper Chemistry, the replica of the world's first hydro-electric plant, the Doty cabin, home of the first territorial governor, and the Grignon home.

A large supply of the maps is available and anyone desiring them can get them from the Appleton and Neenah-Menasha offices of the Post-Crescent for 25 cents.

Spokesman Refuses To Deny Reports of Divorce for Iran's Shah

Tehran, Iran — (AP) — A royal court spokesman today declined to confirm or deny reports that the Shah and Queen Soraya have agreed on a separation followed by divorce.

Previously court officials have flatly denied such reports. Queen Soraya is now visiting her ailing father in West Germany after a vacation in Switzerland. There has been no official announcement here on the date of her return.

Rumors of a royal separation have recurred for several years because Soraya has not borne any children. The Shah divorced Egyptian Princess Fawzia, sister of ex-King Farouk, who had only daughters. Girls cannot succeed to a Moslem throne.

7 billion dollars American families —and our economy— can count on this year

Life insurance payments to the American people have increased steadily for the past 14 years—and 1958 will be no exception. This year, policyholders and their families will receive $7 billion from their policies with life insurance companies. More than half of this money will go to policyholders themselves.

Will help millions of families

For many families, these life insurance payments will make the difference between continuing a reasonable standard of living and just "getting by." And this money will tide millions of policyholders over serious financial emergencies . . . help pay for children's education . . . or assure an income at retirement.

These life insurance payments will also help all of us. For they become $7 billion of buying power that will have a healthy, beneficial effect on our entire economy.

Important source of new capital

Through their premium payments, owners of life insurance policies also furnish a large share of the capital needed for America's growth. This year alone, they will supply a total of $5 billion of new capital, creating jobs and opportunities all over America.

Savings combat inflation, too

As America's most widely used form of thrift, life insurance illustrates the essential role of the saver in keeping our economy strong. And the saver contributes in another way—by helping to hold back inflation and the rising prices that rob us all.

Today, 109 million policyholders are counting on their life insurance. The nation, in turn, can count on them and other savers as a powerful force in keeping our economy sound and growing.

Good for Public Pay-See TV Deserves Trial, Jingo Thinks

BY JINGO

Jingo's a proponent of giving pay-see television a trial. The sooner the better.

Free television has long proclaimed its virtues. If the system really is as good as the moguls say, it has nothing to fear.

But, the broadcast industry appears frightened by pay-see television and it seems that the very best argument for a trial lies in that fear.

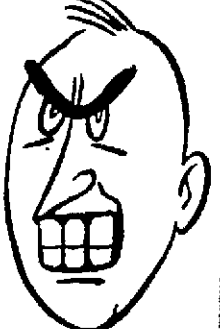

After all, both TV systems would be offering the same commodity: Entertainment. If one outshines the other, it will be only because it offers the better entertainment fare. And, if the moguls of free TV are as frightened as they appear to be, it seems pay-see TV has won the entertainment battle without donning a glove. Anyway, if there's an alternative, the public ought to decide whether it's right.

Isn't it strange that a businessman who wants to charge for something already given free is refused a trial? A fellow with that kind of madness, it would seem, ought to have a chance.

There's this to think about: There are dozens of so-called high-frequency waves any one or two of which would serve as a neat corner into which to tuck pay-see TV. These kind of waves now are wasted.

If congress forbids a trial for pay-see TV, it enters the vast area of economic planning. This is something which—strangely—moguls in the broadcast industry until this time have fought as bearcats. Such a move would make congress czar of commercial show business.

Jingo's Jewels: Cantinflas, Mexican clown in "Around the World in 80 Days," is making another American movie. "Pepe." It's about a Mexican shoeshine boy who becomes head of a movie studio . . . Frank Sinatra's next picture. "Kings Go Forth," has been sneak previewed . . . Red Nichols will teach Danny Kaye how to play trumpet in the upcoming movie "The Five Pennies" . . . Jacqueline Beer, Miss France of 1957, has been signed for a role in the dramatic series sponsored by—you guessed it—a brewery . . . Dr. Edwin Teller, of H-bomb fame, Tennessee

The Law and You

Hitchhiking Can be Dangerous To Both Driver and Solicitor

A stark reminder that picking up hitchhikers is both illegal and dangerous is provided by the recent murder spree of a Nebraska farm youth. A pair of teenagers became two of the eleven murder victims because they gave in to the generous impulse to give the murderer a ride.

Hitchhiking is dangerous for motorists and hitchhiker alike. Ten years ago a University of Wisconsin student and his girl companion were given a ride by a pair of young men. They remember that you are required hosts they murdered the student and assaulted the young woman.

Wisconsin law provides: "No person shall be on a roadway for the purpose of soliciting a ride from the operator of any vehicle other than a public passenger vehicle." The penalty provided is a $10 to $20 fine for a first offense and a $25 to $50 fine for a second offense.

Can Be Sued

If you are walking on the highway, you may be given a ride you did not solicit. But remember that you are required able to size up a hitchhiker at a glance and pass up the dangerous ones. But this is a game at which no one is allowed to make mistakes. The chances are that nothing wrong will happen, but the stakes are too high to make it worth the risk. You stand to lose everything and gain nothing.

(The State Bar of Wisconsin offers this column to inform, not to advise. Facts may change the application of the law.)

highway facing oncoming traffic. The penalties for violating this law are the same as for hitchhiking.

As a motorist, you should know a hitchhiker may sue you if he is injured in an automobile accident caused by your negligence. The fact he was "begging a ride" and you gave him one on generous impulse does not affect his rights against you if he is injured. He has the same legal standing as any other guest in your car.

Many a motorist claims he is able to size up a hitchhiker at a glance and pass up the dangerous ones. But this is a game at which no one is allowed to make mistakes. The chances are that nothing wrong will happen, but the stakes are too high to make it worth the risk. You stand to lose everything and gain nothing.

CONSTIPATED?

New laxative discovery un-locks bowel blocks without gag, bloot or gripe

Most constipation is caused by what doctors call a "thirsty" colon that loses so much moisture that its contents become so dry they block the bowel; so shrunken they fail to stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

To regain normal regularity, the dry, shrunken contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be re-moistened. Second, bulk must be brought to S-T-R-E-T-C-H STIMULATING colon to action; to a normal urge to purge. And, of all laxatives, only new COLONARD, possesses its great moisturing capacity plus its stretch-stimulating bulk. So effective it relieves even chronic constipation overnight, yet is so gentle it has been hospital proved safe even for women in critical stages of pregnancy.

Superior to old style bulk, salt or drug laxatives, COLONARD neither gags, bloats nor grips; won't interfere with absorption of vitamins or food nutrients; in clinical tests, did not cause rash or other reactions.

It's a physiological fact: Exercise tones your body! And COLONARD exercises your colon to tone it against constipation, overnight! Get COLONARD, in easy-to-take tablets, today! Introductory size, only 98¢, at all drugists.

Meeting With Governor Set in Skenandore Case

Claim Evidence Will be Offered to Back
Affidavit of Woman Who Ran House

Green Bay — Gov. Thomson will be offered evidence Tuesday that corroborates the affidavit presented Friday to the protection committee of the Brown county board in the next step of charges against Sheriff Artley Skenandore. Owen Monfils, said this morning.

Monfils and Francis Leanna, Brown county supervisor, have an appointment with Thomson and Atty. Gen. Stewart Honeck at 10:30 Tuesday morning. Monfils is Leanna's attorney.

Leanna, in a statement issued by Monfils, also challenged the conclusion reached Friday that the protection committee of the county board has no jurisdiction in the case.

"I'll Advise" He said he believes the committee "is ill advised when it concludes it has no jurisdiction over the Brown county sheriff and his present plight." Leanna extended an invitation to county board members and committeemen and interested citizens to accompany him to Madison.

In Madison, Thomson said he would have no comment to make until after the meeting Tuesday. Both Thomson and Honeck have received copies of the affidavit presented to the protection committee Friday.

3 New Factors Friday three new factors were added to the ouster effort launched by Leanna. A hand-written document was introduced detailing charges against the sheriff. It was identified as an affidavit signed Feb. 21 by Mary Ann Sanderson, one-time operator of the Clipper Inn, a town of Bellevue tavern raided as a house year the usual coronation day feast which was to have been celebrated March 12 in the Vatican basilica.

Bishop Flordelli's attorney is appealing the verdict.

The bishop told the throng in the cathedral that the trial was a "sacriligious and immensely sinful act."

"The first sentiment which comes out of my heart is a feeling of total forgiveness," he declared. "Like a father, I completely forgive those who harm me without knowing it." The charge was brought by a 32-year-old grocer, Mario Belandini, and his wife. They sued for damages after the bishop called them "public sinners" because they married outside the church. The court awarded the couple $672 in damages and suspended a $84 fine on the bishop. Payment of the damages depends on the outcome of the appeal.

Vatican Radio Comment
The government radio went off the air yesterday to permit the Vatican station to use the same wave-length to attack the verdict. The communist newspaper L'Unita said this would surely be brought up in parliament and praised the verdict as "a victory for modern Italy."

The Vatican's radio commentator said that the eventual result of the verdict would be to deny the church the "liberty of exercising the sovereign rights conferred on it . . . by its divine founder."

Premier Adone Zoli's Christian democrats, however, argued in speeches that the verdict proved there was no proof for opposition charges that their government was trying to "clericalize the state."

Five thousand young members of Italian Catholic Action marched to St. Peter's square in Rome today in a hymn-singing demonstration in support of the bishop of Prato.

The youths cheered the pope bringing the pontiff to his window. He raised his arms to bless the youths, who knelt on the cobblestones.

Milwaukee Nurse Dies In Illinois Accident

Ridgeland, Ill. — Two persons, including a nurse from Milwaukee, were killed Saturday in a 2-car collision on Highway 12 near the Wisconsin line.

The dead were identified as Irene Mack, Milwaukee, and Albin Voldness, 60, Wonder Lake, Ill. Five other nurses were injured and hospitalized.

Miss Mack was a passenger in a car carrying the nurses. Voldness was the driver of the other automobile.

The Last Streetcar Trip in Wisconsin made by this bunting trimmed trolley in Milwaukee Sunday is reminiscent of another Sunday in Appleton nearly 28 years ago. On that day, April 6, 1930, Appleton ended its historic electric railway service, the first commercially successful line in the world that dated back to Aug. 16, 1886. The streetcars were sent to Milwaukee after the service ended here. Horsecars had been used in Milwaukee since 1860, but electric street cars were not in existence there until 1890. (AP Wirephoto) who, has testified he made loans and gave other financial assistance to Mack.

Baker said National tried to get Whiteside to act as a lawyer in its television case, but he refused. Baker added, "If Mr. Whiteside then spoke to Mr. Mack in our behalf it was unknown to me and was not as our representative or attorney."

Porter is a former FCC chairman who was attorney for Katzentine in the TV case.

Baker swore that Col. G. Gordon Moore, Mrs. Eisenhower's brother-in-law, never "interceded in any case in any forum" for National or its subsidiary, Public Service Television, Inc. The subcommittee received testimony earlier in its hearings that there were reports that Moore was "engineering" the award of the TV channel to National Airlines.

As the congressional hearing proceeded, the White House continued its silence on reports that Mack's resignation from the FCC had been asked.

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty fended off all manner of questions about a Mack resignation and whether White House officials had put pressure on the commissioner to turn one in.

"I haven't any comment on it until I have something I can say," Hagerty told reporters. "and I have nothing to say at this time."

Asked whether he might have something to say before the day is out the press secretary replied: "I don't know. There is no resignation that we have received or that I can comment on."

The Chicago Tribune published a report over the weekend that the White House had told Mack to quit or be fired. Mack is a Florida Democrat who was appointed to the FCC by President Eisenhower in 1955.

The Washington Evening Star today quoted "a source close to the 'embattled commissioner' as saying Mack would consult his lawyers today on the decision of resigning. The story said Mack had not written or submitted a resignation."

Baker went on the offensive from the beginning of his testimony to the house committee. "The Downey Rice-Paul Por-

Sequence of Freak Events Result in Death of Housewife

Salt Lake City — William E. Caywood found his wife, Aleta, 44, dead in a water-filled bathtub when he returned from work yesterday. A doctor figured she drowned following a sequence of freak events.

City Physician Howard H. Haynes said Mrs. Caywood apparently collapsed from a seizure as she entered the bathroom, falling toward the tub.

He said her head struck the tap, turning the water on, and her hand came to rest over the tub's drain plug, preventing the water from draining from the tub. He found her hair net on the handle of the open water tap.

Dr. Haynes said she apparently drowned before she regained consciousness.

ter technique was a blackmail threat on the vice president of the United States and nothing else," Baker said.

This referred to earlier testimony that Rice, a former investigator for the crime investigating committee headed by Kefauver, had taken part in an attempt to convince high Republican figures that an influence scandal was building up in the Miami case.

Katzentine's group was favored in the original examiner's report, but the commission later reversed the examiner's findings and ordered the channel given to the national airlines subsidiary. The matter is still on appeal in the U. S. Circuit court for the District of Columbia.

There has been testimony that Vice President Nixon was not directly approached, but that persons favorable to Katzentine did call on Bob King, an administrative assistant to the vice president.

"I feel strongly that the committee's judgment of Commissioner Mack must be based on the same moral standards used to judge those who pursued Commissioner Mack regardless of who they may be," Baker said.

If Food Is a Comfort, Obese Should Know Why, Says Expert

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Writer

Before starting a diet to take off those extra pounds, try to find out why you ate them on in the first place. Maybe you shouldn't even try to reduce.

Specialists in obesity — physicians, psychologists and nutritionists — are increasingly convinced that in many cases we overeat to satisfy emotional rather than physical needs. "Before going on a diet," says nutritionist Charlotte M. Young, "you should learn why you should try to lose weight. A lot of people go on — or are put on — reducing regimens without concern for the reason the weight is there."

Many Purposes Food serves many purposes in life besides the basic one of stoking the body's fires. Hospitality, for instance, is closely associated with food. Unplanned leisure, with resulting boredom, frequently leads to the refrigerator. We eat during baseball and football games; while watching television.

"We live in anxious times without much physical outlet for our anxieties," says Dr. Young. "To many, food becomes a solace. "I feel certain that many people have adjusted to their problems, emotional in nature, by overeating. And that may be a satisfactory adjustment — and if so, what is so dreadful about being a bit overweight?"

Pounds Melt Slowly Despite the spate of surefire reducing diets and the popularity of weight-reduction articles and books, repeated experiments show many people have comparatively little success peeling off pounds, even when their programs are highly controlled and well disciplined.

Typical was a recent clinic for the overweight headed by Dr. Young, who is professor of medical nutrition in Cornell university's graduate school of nutrition, and by Dr. Norman S. Moore, the school's professor of clinical medicine.

In 28 months, 168 overweight persons were treated.

One-fourth Succeed Only a quarter of the patients were successful. Another quarter lost some pounds; another quarter took off a few pounds and the rest accomplished nothing.

"It was our impression that success was largely related to the patient's emotional stability," the researchers said in a report published in the Journal of the American Dietetic association. "... the 'reasonably stable' patients were largely quite successful, while those who appeared to have 'deeper emotional problems' were largely unsuccessful."

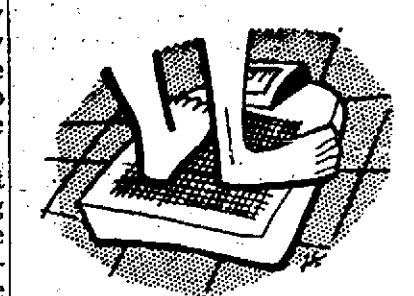

Dr. Young says flatly that people get fat simply by eating more food than they need. We are an overweight nation because, among other things, we have plenty of food, expend little energy in our small well-heated houses, go in for watching sports instead of participating in them.

The experts—even the housewife — know how to take off pounds. It is simply a matter of eating fewer calories than we burn up. The problem is to do it.

Obviously, points out Dr. Young, the best way to handle obesity is by not putting on weight in the first place. Next best, she feels, is keeping the pounds under control.

"It is much, much easier to reduce a small amount," she says. "People with a few pounds to lose can be most hopeful about taking them off. Pay attention when you put on an extra 15, or 10 or even 5 pounds."

Experiments have found two most important factors in losing weight successfully. The first is motivation—a real and abiding desire to reduce. The second is to have someone to whom the patient reports regularly. The average successful dieter is not a "do-it-yourself type."

Opportune Time Assuming an overweight person has been able to figure out why he is overeating (a project which may require help from a physician, a psychiatrist or psychologist) and also has strong motives to slim down, there are good times and bad times to launch the diet.

"Best results come when life circumstances are best," she says. "It's no time to start reducing when one is emotionally disturbed—when a woman is newly widowed or when a man is starting a new job."

All things being perfect, is rolling off pounds as easy as rolling off that log, as the articles and books imply?

Reducing Hard Task "Reducing," said Dr. Young with a certain grimace of tone, "is one of the hardest things in the world to do. Everyone is looking for an easy way to do it, but I don't think there is one."

"The more we know about the problem, the more I lean to the view that so long as we continue to lead such physically inactive lives, we will just have to settle for one of two things: being overweight, or being a little bit hungry all the time."

Ripon Alumni Set Assembly Tonight After Campus Game Fox Valley alumni of Ripon college will hold an informal get-together tonight at the Club Terrace after the Lawrence-Ripon basketball game at the Lawrence fieldhouse. Gordon Minch, director of alumni affairs at Ripon, will be among the guests, according to Max Tungate, Appleton, president of the Fox Valley group.

KD Mothers to Work on Projects Projects for the active chapter at Lawrence college will be worked on when the Kappa Delta Mothers club assembles for a 6:30 supper meeting Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. Joseph Steiner, 3110 N. Onocida street. Mrs. H. J. Weller will assist the hostess.

Extra Durable—Small Upholstered Chair

Plan it that way, and no small or medium-size upholstered chair stops short at just one duty. With or without arms, chairs that are pleasantly padded bring comfort to the dining table—the kid the family enjoys every day, the kind that helps so much to make a dinner party a success. Chairs with arms pull up to round out a conversation grouping. A chair without arms doubles as a desk.

It's wise to choose the dining table and the less bulky upholstered chairs at the same time. When the table and chairs are designed as part of the same grouping, the chairs are the right height for the table and their widths are right for fitting just so many to the table's length without crowding. Lawrence Peabody designed the graceful walnut furniture sketched to belong together and offers a special idea in the desk. For the small apartment where there's not enough room for both a desk and a dining table, this piece of furniture is both. The deep drop leaf raises to provide dining surface, and the drawer unit can be removed to make room for chairs. (Furniture by Richardson, sketched at the American Furniture Mart in Chicago.)

Mrs. P. C. F.—"The walls and carpet in our living room are gray, the sofa is light green and the draperies are rose. Please advise me about color for chairs."

A tweedy mixture might include all of the scheme colors, and so might a more definite pattern although it could use only two of the colors instead of all three. If you plan more than two chairs, one or more should be in a plain color. Which color depends somewhat on where the chair is to go. It's often wise to place a color repeat across the room rather than near the piece of furniture or drapery of the same or nearly the same color.

Mrs. D. G. M.—"Our bathroom is small and the peach wall tiling is trimmed with wine tiles. I have tried pink accessories, but they are off-shade, so I am thinking of white accessories trimmed in wine and pink ball fringe. Is this a good idea, and what color should the walls and woodwork be painted, peach or white?"

A predominance of one color simplifies and improves a small bathroom. Paint the walls and woodwork to match the wall tile, or in a slightly lighter shade of the same color and let the white of the accessories be the contrast and repeat of the fixtures. Peach rather than pink would be better for part of the fringe.

Sack Line Favorite of Curvaceous Starlet

BY JAMES BACON

Hollywood —Paris' new fashion look—the sack and the trapeze—found a champion today in the last person one would ever expect—an amply-endowed starlet.

So far Hollywood, where bosom is queen, has not adopted the look that tries to hide the fact that girls are girls. But blonde Juli Reding is all for the chemise cover-up.

"I came to Hollywood two years ago from Branson, Mo.," she declares, "and all I have done since is take drama lessons and pose for cheesecake photos. I couldn't get a part in a movie until the house of Dior made sack dresses."

Juli is quite a dish. She has legs like Betty Grable and a bosom line like Jayne Mansfield. She's pretty, too.

"Everytime I went on an interview at a studio, I always got the same answer: 'honey, this is a serious role, not a comedy. You're just too much for the part.'"

She speaks the truth. Movie producers look upon the voluptuous girls only as comediennees, especially if they're blondes. Academy records show that a girl with a 40-inch bosom or larger has never even been nominated for an Oscar.

"I'm not a comedy type girl," Juli moans. "I study serious dramatics."

So far she has helped pay for her lessons with walk-on bits on the George Gobel and Steve Allen TV shows.

"All I have to do is walk across a stage in a brief costume while the comic ogles me. I get more laughs than he. It's horrible."

Juli wore a sack dress a few months ago that gave her a figure like Chill Wills.

"My agent called me in a restaurant and told me to be at Columbia studios in 15 minutes to read for a part in 'Cowboy' starring Glenn Ford and Jack Lemmon. They wanted sexy-looking party girls for a brawl scene in a Chicago hotel. I didn't have time to change into a revealing dress so I wore my sack."

It was about her 50th movie

Your Problems

Readers Differ on Chances of Marriage With Older Man

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: You don't know what you're talking about. The answer you gave that 21-year-old girl who wanted to marry a man 42 was all wet.

My husband is 20 years older than I am. When we married he had children almost my age. Everyone advised against Ann Landers. They said it would never last. We've been married 17 years next month and have two teenage boys. Neither of us has any regrets.

As for him "needing rest"—and me "needing love", I think I need more rest than he does. So you were wrong there, too. Age is sometimes less important than metabolism.

One of the big advantages of marrying an older man is that love stands a better chance when you don't have to squeeze that nickel until the Indian jumps on the buffalo's back. GLAD I DID

DEAR ANN: Well — if YOU'RE glad, then so am I. But, please read on:

DEAR ANN: Your advice to the 21-year-old girl who wanted to marry the 42-year-old man really hit me between the eyes.

My mother was a widow who struggled to keep a roof over our heads (and a leaky one at that). She always preached to my sister and me that it was "better to be a rich man's darling than a poor man's slave."

My sister, at 18, married a man who was twice her age and then some. After 10 years of misery, she drank herself to death.

I married a man 22 years older than myself—with "comfort" in mind. The boy I was in love with worked in a warehouse but Mama said he'd never amount to anything.

My life has been a mess. We never had any children because my husband said he couldn't stand the noise.

I've had to fight for every dollar because he's the kind who believes in re-investing money to make more. Don't ask me what for. He never spends any of it.

Although he owns several pieces of valuable property we rent a little place in the bad part of town. When I ask him why we can't live like decent human beings he tells me he doesn't want to be "investigated."

There's a "funny" side to this tragic story, Ann. That kid who worked in the warehouse now owns one of the country's leading drug chains and he has a wonderful family.—DUMB-DORA

DEAR ANN: When a gal 21 ties up with a man 42, why in the world should she be concerned about what the marriage will be like in 20 years? What makes her think it will last that long?

In my own circle of friends, I've seen sweet young things marry men who are old enough to be their fathers. What happens after three or four years? That distinguished gentleman (always with a touch of grey at the temples) gets bored with his elderly wife of 25, and starts to look around for a sweeter and younger thing.

She ought not to be surprised, however, since she should remember the reason he married HER was because he liked young girls.—KISMET

DEAR ANN: When a 21-year-old chick thinks of marrying a 42-year-old rooster, it means only ONE thing. She's looking for a guy just like Dear Old Dad. My suggestion is to forget about marriage and stay at home with Dear Old Dad until she grows out of it. A gal who is still nuts about Dad isn't ready to be a wife. —SIGGY FREUD

Pewter Possessions in Colonial Day Established Social Rank of Family

BY IDA MARGARET BAY

In colonial times the dream of every housewife was to possess a few pieces of pewter. To have a Welsh dresser full of it established her social position beyond question. Perhaps the most prized vessel in the entire household was the salt cellar. It was usually the first piece of pewter selected for a new home. Chosen with care this piece generally would last a lifetime.

The importance the salt cellar assumed in the eyes of the American colonist was probably a throwback from feudal times when its position on the table marked the social position of the diners. V.I.P.'s sat above it. Lesser personalities dined ignominiously below the salt line.

The discovery of pewter is obscure—but probably contemporary with that of bronze, the metal of early weapons. Copper with 10 per cent of tin added makes bronze. Tin with 20 per cent of copper makes the finest pewter.

Pewter's Art Old We know that the art of the pewterer is a very old one. It was practiced in Egypt in 3700 B.C. Pewter is mentioned in the Bible. It was made by the Chinese 2,000 years ago and by the English as far back as the 12th century. In England, however, hundreds of years passed before people were prosperous enough to own any. After the restoration the very wealthy enjoyed it for daily household use, but a great deal of the 18th century had passed before the average person could substitute pewter for wood.

There is an old saying that it took 450 years for pewter to make the journey from the palace to the poorhouse. After that all England used it for eating, drinking and cooking. It was the link between wood and China.

Strange uses have been made of the silvery gray metal, throughout the centuries. The heart of Richard Coeur de Lion—who was slain by a bolt from a crossbow at the siege of the castle of Chalus—was encased in pewter and buried in the cathedral at Rouen.

Due to the poor transportation of the times, the fashion of burying the heart of some loved one in a particular place was not unusual. It was impossible to move a body any great distance. In this case the date 1199 was remembered but the place was forgotten and Richard's heart was not rediscovered until 1840.

Identity of Origin Collectors of pewter can usually identify at a glance the origin of their selections. American pewter is the ultimate in simplicity, relying on perfect proportion and beauty of line to achieve distinction. English and Scotch pewter is simple and dignified with restrained ornamentation. Continental pewter, on the other hand, and particularly the French, is often lavishly decorated.

The maker's touch, usually found on the large and medium sized pieces, also reveals the origin of pewter. For instance, the angel touchmark invariably indicates a continental piece. Above it, Lesser personalities dined ignominiously below the salt line.

Another method of identification is to study the thumb-pieces on tankards and flagons.

Each country had its own individual style. Dates on pewter mean very little. Household articles made of this metal were so highly prized that they passed from father to son, and from one member of a family to another. The date was often added when the item was used as a gift rather than when it was made.

Scarce in U.S. Although our country had only 200 known pewterers, vast quantities were made here in the early days. Almost everything that is now made of china, crockery or metal was once made of pewter. England, too, shipped us great amounts. It would seem that there should be much for the modern collector to choose from. Unfortunately such is not the case.

Pewter is a soft metal easily dented or broken. In days past it was the custom to melt and remold such damaged pieces. More than anything else this has caused a scarcity of really old pewter.

Another reason for its scarcity was our own American Revolution. All unnecessary pewter was melted and made into bullets. Patriotic citizens gave all they could spare. Certainly all of the English pieces shared the same fate as the lead statue of the very unpopular George III.

The practical Yankees—endowed by nature with a sardonic sense of humor—decided they wanted no part of

Communist Showings Favor Sack-Line, Too

BY JOHN FIEHN

Leipzig, East Germany—The communist version of the new sack line swept down the runways at an international fashion show last night during the Leipzig fair.

Models from Soviet Russia, East Germany, Poland and Hungary paraded the East bloc's latest women's apparel. To keep the show from looking like an exclusive in East Europe, some internationally unknown firms from France, the Netherlands and Austria were allowed to show what they would like to export behind the Iron Curtain.

There were no Dior's, Balmain's or Simonetta's. But leading designers from Moscow, Warsaw, Budapest and East Berlin offered modified replicas of the French and Italian creations.

The emphasis was on everyday wear—simple but tasteful house and shopping dresses, wools and wooly cottons. Pretty Polish girls even displayed some daring knee-length cocktail numbers.

Almost all the Russian dresses stressed the new sack line—without waistline and tight skirts with tiny pleats breaking the hemline in the rear to allow for walking space. One 2-piece called "working day" indicated a new sack is about to establish itself in the life of the modern Russian housewife or working girl.

Russian hemlines ended only fractions of an inch below the knee.

East Germany showed about 60 dresses, 30 of them of the sack type. They ranged from brightly colored 1-piece house numbers to full-skirted lace evening gowns, trimmed with expensive Russian furs.

Colors in general seemed dull, and seldom could the 2,000 gaping East German spectators see daring color combinations.

George's statue or his country's pewter. Both were swifly melted.

Later, when the war ended, and trade was revived, great quantities of pewter again arrived from England.

Snow Flurries are Expected tonight in the northern Appalachians, the Great Lakes, the upper Mississippi valley and the northern and central Rockies. It will be generally fair in the remainder of the nation with mild weather continuing in the middle and south Atlantic states. (AP Wirephoto)

Snow Cover Expected to Melt Soon

Much of the snow which fell on the Fox Cities over the weekend is gone and the rest probably will go soon if temperatures reach anticipated highs today and tomorrow.

Weathermen say the mercury will range from 34 to 40 Tuesday, after overnight lows of 18 to 25. There is a chance of some snow flurries by late Tuesday.

The snow which fell Saturday and Sunday was of the heavy, wet variety—ideal for making snowmen but not much else.

The Wisconsin Michigan Power company said the highest temperature Sunday was 38 with an overnight low of 28. The temperature at 11 o'clock this morning was 31 and probably will move into the mid or high 30s by this afternoon.

According to the Associated Press, the fresh blanket of snow ranged in depth from only half an inch to one inch, but the snow cover at Park Falls and Superior today totaled 10 inches. Wausau had four inches on the ground.

Temperatures, meanwhile, remained unseasonably high, with Superior reporting the lowest nighttime minimum—20 degrees.

Gunnison, Colo., was the country's coldest spot with 10 below zero.

The mercury remained in the 30s in most Wisconsin communities Sunday, except at Superior and Park Falls where the peak was 29. Green Bay had 36, compared with a national high of 87 degrees at West Palm Beach, Fla.

Education Not Practical Enough Is Complaint of Young Adults

BY EUGENE GILBERT

There is a growing feeling among the nation's leaders in both government and education that our schools must develop more future scientists to meet the Soviet threat of technological superiority.

How do our young people feel about changes in school curricula that this would call for? Are they satisfied with the subjects they are required to take?

ments on subjects they had not yet taken or analyze a portion of their education still in their future.

From a viewpoint of national security, the answers were encouraging.

From an educational viewpoint, they were less satisfying.

Mathematics, the survey showed, proved to be more popular than is generally thought. More than one out of every four boys said if he had his high school years to live over, he would definitely take more math courses.

And 53 per cent of them said they would see to it that their children built their education on a strong foundation of mathematics in high school.

See Dissatisfaction

But when it came to assessing their entire high school program, more than 50 per cent of all boys and girls interviewed expressed dissatisfaction with the curriculum and felt it left them unprepared for making a living in the world.

Most of the complaints were directed against courses of more classical nature.

"Take languages, for example," said 18-year-old Marvin Lazarus of Akron, Ohio. "I haven't even had a chance to read a Spanish menu since I left school."

Not Practical

Peter Mitchell of Seattle complained his high school program was too generalized to be of real value when it came to finding a job. "I know a little bit about a lot of things," he said ruefully, "But I really don't know too much about anything."

Even the girls in this age of science wished they had taken more courses in mathematics, and 38 per cent of them indicated that they will see to it that their children do not make the same omission in the curriculum.

first to go if young people had a hand in designing high school programs?

The answer was the same from both boys and girls: languages.

Next on the "must go" list came history.

But no matter what courses they were required to take, both boys and girls were unanimous in urging their friends and, in the future, their children to obtain a high school diploma.

Carl Davenport of San Francisco summed up their sentiments about the value of a high school education when he called it "the ticket to advancement. You can't go anyplace without it."

Harry Cohn Given Biggest Funeral In Film History

Hollywood — Harry Cohn, the most famous of Hollywood moguls, died yesterday after a long illness. He was 66 years old.

The setting was bizarre—even for Hollywood. Cohn's funeral was held on sound stage 12 on the Columbia lot. It was fitting—a monument that he had built for himself.

As Danny Kaye said in the eulogy: "This (sound stage) was Harry Cohn's cathedral. This is where the fierceness of his flame that was within him burned some and warmed others."

The services were non-denominational. An organ played and a girl sang and another comic—Danny Thomas—delivered the only prayer. The only mourners included some of his most famous adversaries.

Lawrence Says:

Proposed Bill Would Abridge Press Freedom

Some Senators Back Postal Rate Increase For Large Magazines

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — Only 22 years ago the Supreme Court of the United States, in an unanimous opinion, ruled that governmental authority in America must never be used under the guise of the taxing power to penalize publications of large circulation as against those of smaller circulation. To do this was held to be a violation of the first amendment to the constitution, which forbids the enactment of any law that abridges the freedom of the press.

Yet last week in the United States Senate, 28 Democrats and 5 Republicans voted to do that very thing when they demanded higher postal rates be imposed on publications of larger circulation than on publications of smaller circulation. Fortunately, 39 Republicans and 18 Democrats combined to defeat the attempt. But there still remains a provision of the same kind in the bill originally passed by the house of representatives and which soon will be considered by a conference committee of both houses.

This correspondent remembers well the 1936 decision of the Supreme Court because it was a big news story at the time. The state of Louisiana, under the pressure of its governor, the late Huey Long, had enacted as a reprisal against the larger newspapers of the state a law dividing all newspapers into two classes—those with less than and those with more than 20,000 circulation. A special tax of 2 per cent was levied on the gross receipts on all advertisements published in the newspapers of larger circulation, but this was not applied to the newspapers of smaller circulation.

The Supreme Court said the effect of the tax would be "to curtail the amount of revenue realized from advertising" and would involve "a direct tendency to restrict circulation," and then added: "it might well result in destroying both advertising and circulation."

What is most interesting to note about this form of censorship is that it has been tried many times before, in fact as early as 1712 when the British parliament imposed a special tax on all newspapers and upon advertisements. Justice Sutherland, who wrote the Supreme Court's opinion in 1936, reviewed the history of such laws in England and said that these taxes constituted one of the factors that aroused the American colonists in protest, and that the American revolution "really began when, in 1765, the British government sent stamps for newspaper duties to the American colonies."

Justice Sutherland referred to such imposts as "taxes on knowledge." Speaking of the Louisiana law's attempt to classify newspapers by circulation and to put a special tax on advertising, the Supreme Court opinion says:

"It is seen to be a deliberate and calculated device in the guise of a tax to limit the circulation of information to which the public is entitled by virtue of the constitutional guarantees. A free press stands as one of the great interpreters between the government and the people. To allow it to be fettered is to fetter ourselves."

Sen. Mike Monroney of Oklahoma, Democrat, said bluntly to the Senate last week that the imposition of higher postal rates on large-circulation magazines than on smaller ones "would penalize a magazine because it had a large circulation." He added:

"If a publishing firm is able to build up a circulation of one of its own magazines to 3,000,000 copies, should we penalize it because the public wants to buy the magazine? . . . I do not believe congress should legislate in that way."

Publishing companies of all kinds, of course, must pay the same general taxes as any other profit-making enterprises. There is no doubt that the post office department needs more money, and certainly the newspapers and magazines should pay the increased costs for transportation of their issues in the mails when it is conclusively ascertained by an impartial commission of accountants, authorized by congress, just what such costs actually involve. But discrimination in postal rates as between publications of the same kind is a violation of the constitution not only because it deprives them of equal protection of the laws under the fifth amendment, but because it is also an infringement on the first amendment.

The weight per copy — and not the total circulation — says Sen. Monroney is the only sound way to measure the rates that should be paid for postage by publishers.

It is significant that in the

Chinese Witnesses Can Prove Germ War Lawyer Says

Honolulu — A. L. Wirin of Los Angeles, defense attorney, says he has evidence that will justify bringing 1,000 witnesses from communist China to testify in the Powell sedition case.

Wirin arrived in Honolulu last night after spending nearly eight weeks on the Chinese mainland gathering evidence.

The three defendants are charged by the U.S. government with publishing germ warfare accusations against the United States in the China Monthly Review. They are John W. Powell, editor; Powell's wife, Sylvia; and Julian Schuman of New York, an associate editor. Powell now lives at San Francisco.

"If this evidence is produced in court," Wirin said, "it is sufficient to support a verdict of acquittal."

"The skepticism which I had when I entered China as to whether the United States engaged in bacteriological warfare has been substantially dispelled by what I saw and heard."

"Whether or not the United States was responsible for participation in bacteriological

Von Braun Says We Could Hit Moon Now

London — Dr. Werner Von Braun, the U.S. army's rocket expert, says the United States could send a rocket to the moon right now if its objective were merely "putting a beer can on the moon."

"Who wants to put a beer can on the moon?" the German-born scientist said in a British television interview filmed in Washington and aired here yesterday. He added that the problem of sending a man into outer space was more challenging but could definitely be accomplished within the next five years.

Von Braun said the United States will send up an improved version of the Explorer satellite "definitely before the end of April" and eventually send up one with a monkey inside to experiment with the reactions of living things to outer space.

warfare is for the jury to determine."

Wirin was granted a passport to go to red China to gather defense evidence after Federal Judge Louis Goodman threatened to dismiss the case unless the passport was granted.

High Court Reverses Decision of Judge

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh — The state supreme court has reversed a decision of Municipal Judge S. J. Luchsinger in the $420 suit of Leonard Padgham of Oshkosh against the Wilson Music company of Oshkosh. Padgham had been awarded a $420 judgment by a municipal court jury in his suit against the company from which he had purchased a home freezer.

Judge Luchsinger had denied a defense motion to overrule the jury verdict and the supreme court reversed this decision and ordered dismissal of Padgham's complaint. Padgham asked his money back on the grounds the freezer unit did not maintain proper temperature. The company had installed a replacement unit in the freezer which it said did maintain the proper temperature and it said that Padgham refused to accept it.

Buffet Entertaining, Easy For Both Hostess, Guests

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh — Whether entertaining for a large or small group, buffet style service is easy to serve and plan for the hostess and easy for the guests, advises Miss Lois Klusmeyer, county home agent. The buffet service can be set up almost any place in the home, the kitchen, living room, play area or dining room.

Arrange the service on a table that is large enough for all serving dishes and accessories. If a meal is planned using no trays, have only one plate and one piece of silver, the home agent advises. If tray service is planned, silver and napkins can be placed on the trays, while a more elaborate meal and service can be prepared when using small tables.

The arrangement of the table should start with the main dish, plates, vegetable, salad and lastly, bread. The small table with trays would have the silver and napkins and space for beverages. The home agent suggests pork - chicken casserole, a apple - cinnamon mold, buttered broccoli, toasted loaf of French bread and banana cake with fluffy icing as a possible buffet menu.

In preparing the toasted loaf slice one loaf of French bread into one-inch slices. Avoid cutting through the bottom crust. Butter between the slices and wrap in aluminum foil. Heat in a moderate oven just before serving.

The recipe for apple-cinnamon mold, which serves 12, requires two three-ounce packages of cherry flavored gelatin, two cups hot water, one-half cup red cinnamon candies, one cup boiling water, three cups chopped pared apples, two cups chopped celery and one cup chopped nut meats.

Dissolve the gelatin in two cups of hot water. Add the cinnamon candies to the cup of boiling water. Stir to dissolve and add enough water to make two cups liquid. Then add to the dissolved gelatin. Cool until partially set. Add the remaining ingredients. Mold in a ring and chill until firm. Unmold on crisp salad greens just before serving.

GUARD YOUR HEALTH THIS CHANGEABLE WEATHER

By Upton X. Furman
Chiropractor, Neenah

This advice comes at the time of year when one day is cold, next day hot, then foggy and dry. These temperature, barometric, and humidity changes require sudden adaptive changes in the body. For the body to cope with the weather conditions at hand, it must be functioning at its very best. Careful attention must be paid to rest and diet. If you have been in the habit of going to bed at 10 every evening, then don't deviate far from that routine. If you are in the habit of eating at a certain time and certain foods, continue in the same manner. In other words, at this time of year be very temperate in all that you do.

The nervous system is the mechanism which makes it possible for the various tissues to accommodate themselves to the weather changes and must be in most active and responsible condition. Chiropractic health service makes this possible.

Lesson in English

BY W. L. GORDON

Words often misused: The preposition "up" is greatly overworked, and should be omitted from such expressions as, "end up," "sign up," "open up," and "pay up."

Often mispronounced: Basically. Pronounce bai-i-kah-l-i, in FOUR syllables, and not bai-i-kil.

Word study: "Use a word three times, and it is yours." Let us increase our vocabulary by mastering one word each day.

Today's word: complaisance; disposition to please or oblige; civility. "The politician was known for his complaisance just before the election."

CHILD FREED OF BED WETTING

That is news, especially to mothers who have seen their child suffer the humiliation of this social problem year after year, for 10-15-20 or even more years.

Don't be misled into believing every child out-grows bed wetting. The hard true facts are: Many never do. I know.

THE CRISIS THAT WASN'T

Today, there are many quick victories over disease. Each might be described as a crisis that didn't quite happen — thanks to today's superior medicinal agents.

Modern medicines prescribed by your physician score amazing triumphs over diseases which, only a decade ago, were almost certain to become dangerously serious.

Present-day pharmaceuticals, such as the antibiotics, require complex equipment, intricate controls and highly skilled technicians for production. Although somewhat higher in cost, they actually are an investment in economy. They effect an earlier cure and cut down expensive sick-bed time.

We are staffed and equipped to fill your doctor's prescriptions promptly at prices that are fair.

Extension Bows to Kenosha in Finale

Hopes for Loop Crown Take Severe Jolt; Jooss Hits 29

Kenosha — The Kenosha Extension gave the Menasha championship hopes a big jolt here Saturday night as it recorded an 84-80 victory over the Trotters in a University of Wisconsin Extension division conference contest.

The game closed the Menasha schedule with an 11-3 record. Whether the Trotters get in the title picture won't be known until Sheboygan finishes its schedule. The Chair City five had an 11-2 record going into its weekend encounter with Marinette and it has to face third place Racine before closing its slate.

A double win would give Sheboygan the crown. A win and a loss would knot up the Menashans and Sheboygan and two losses would give the Menashans the undisputed crown.

Trail by 14
Menasha trailed by 14 points at one mark in the first half but managed to get the spread down to nine at 47-38 at the conclusion of the initial 20-minute period.

With three minutes left to play, the Trotters came within two points at 76-74 but the winners pulled away again and finally won by four.

John Jooss collected 29 points on 12 baskets and five free throws to top the Menasha scorers. Tom Martin added 19. Tom Wirth dropped in 30 for Kenosha and Jossert, a second semester arrival, posted 26.

Menasha made 18 of 31 free throws while Kenosha connected on 10 of 16. Kenosha fouled 23 times and had seven more than the Trotters.

Uranium Firm To Liquidate At Clintonville

Stockholders to be Asked to Vote at Meeting on March 12

Clintonville — A month short of its third anniversary, the Badger Uranium corporation will meet at Legion Memorial hall March 12 to liquidate its assets.

Badger Uranium, a Nevada corporation, was one of the spearheads of the mining excitement in the Clintonville-Marion-Big Falls area in 1955. It was chartered April 12, 1955, with a capitalization of $250,000. Officers were William Frost and Nathan Wiese, both of Clintonville, and Raymond Mayne, Marion. Stock was sold to the public.

Medard Schmitz, current secretary, has made notice that stockholders will be asked to vote on a liquidation resolution. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Not Enough Uranium He said today not sufficient uranium was found on the claims to warrant continued operation.

A financial statement with the meeting notice discloses a deficit as of Dec. 31, 1957, at $134,876. On Jan. 1, 1957, the deficit had been $48,798. The corporation lists assets at $13,884.

At time of its chartering the corporation held rights to 40 undeveloped uranium claims in Utah covering some 800 acres of land.

Schmitz said all but two of the properties had reverted back to the government, since development or prospecting work amounting to $100 a year was not carried on. He said liquidation was thought appropriate at this time while the corporation still has some assets to divide among the some 120 stockholders.

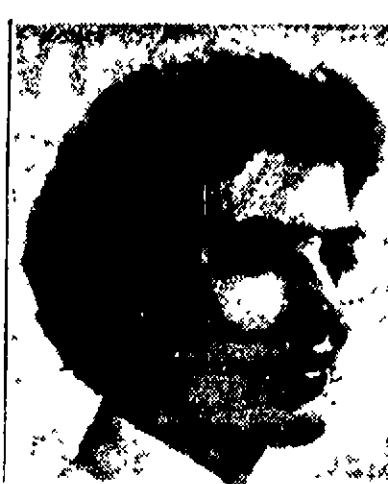

Frost and a Reuben Tews, also of Clintonville, laid claim to uranium finds in the Big Falls area in the autumn of 1954. The claim was never worked to a commercial level. At present claims in the Big Falls, Marion, Tilleda area are being developed by other prospectors pending possible location of a reducing plant in the area.

Depression, Temper May be Ike's Downfall

President Still Popular but Tide
Begins to Turn Against His Attitude

BY STEWART ALSOP

Washington — As the news from the economic front darkens, an episode from the recent past keeps coming back to this reporter's mind. The time was the autumn of 1934. The place was West Virginia. The occasion was the late Sen. Matthew Neeley's campaign for re-election.

The kind of campaign old Matt Neeley was waging came as a kind of traumatic shock. Elsewhere, the Democrats were treating President Eisenhower with kid gloves, or actually trying to grab the president's coat-tails away from the Republicans.

Not so Matt Neeley. Neeley regularly referred to the president as "Eisenhower." He accused the president of "talking in monstrous hypocrisy and nonsense." In speech after speech, he called the Eisenhower policies "as disastrous as Hoover's," and he charged the president with "making paupers of half the population of West Virginia." In the context of those times, the Neeley campaign line sounded almost blasphemous.

Neeley was triumphantly elected by a handsome majority.

The reason for Neeley's triumph was visible to the naked eye everywhere in West Virginia. For West Virginia is a one industry state. The industry is coal. And coal was in the worst slump since the depression days. There were then actually fewer coal miners employed in West Virginia than in the worst days of the evil 30s. This episode is worth recalling for an obvious reason. Suppose the current recession deepens and hardens. What then will be the effect on the president's personal popularity, his prestige and capacity for leadership? Will he become discredited, powerless, and the subject of bitter personal attack, like President Herbert Hoover in the early 30s?

The answer depends in part, of course, on the Democrats. Among responsible Democratic leaders like Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson, there is no disposition whatever to repeat the tactics used against Hoover in the '30s. "I've read the constitution," is a favorite Johnson remark. The implication is that Johnson is fully aware there is no substitute under the American constitutional system for the power and authority of the presidency.

Temper Quickens
But not all Democrats think like Johnson. Many Democrats have squirmed angrily for five long years under the temptation to follow Neeley's example, and have held back only as the better part of valor. And the president seems in a mood to give them precisely the opportunities they are looking for, as his politically imprudent act in flying his wife to a charm school in Arizona suggests.

Combined with his "don't care attitude" is a growing festiveness. The president has always had a quick temper, but he now angers very easily. For example, Eric Johnston, organizer of the recent bi-partisan demonstration for foreign aid, proposed to the president he should speak from the same dinner table as ex-President Truman. The president treated Johnston much as the emperors of other days used to treat the bearers of unwelcome news. He almost took his head off, telling Johnston furiously that he would never break bread with such a man as Truman.

This sort of thing always gets out, and it is not calculated to persuade the Democrats to treat the president kindly. As for the Republicans, precious few of them are planning to campaign as "Eisenhower Republicans" this year, and if the president gets into trouble, they are not likely to rush enthusiastically to his defense.

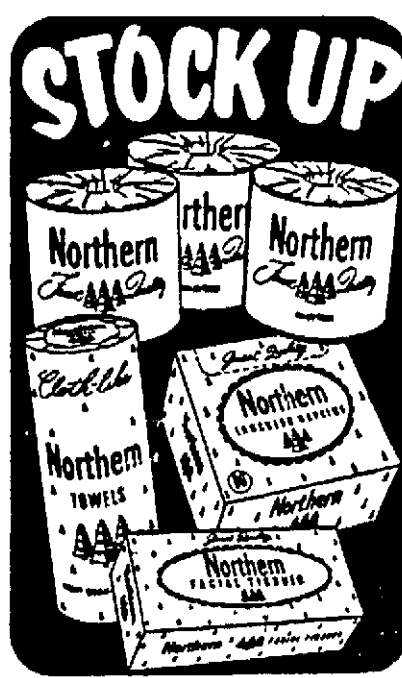

One should not exaggerate. The president is still the most popular political figure in the country. Yet a president is rather like the leader of a wolf pack — any sign of weakness, and he invites a ferocious attack from behind. And a presidential mood of indifference, combined with testiness could make bad trouble for the president in a period of economic decline.

It would be bad trouble for the country too, for it is hard to imagine anything more damaging than a bitter, Neeley-like election fight followed by two years of presidential frustration. But if the nation as a whole begins economically to resemble West Virginia in 1934, that may be in the cards.

Sub-Regional Meets Begin Tuesday at Menasha, AHS

Ghosts and Terrors Clash In Opener

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor

Tournament basketball—that unique phase of athletics that makes every basket seem just a little more important, that induces fans to cheer just a little louder and that gives every team one more chance to make a new start—is returning to the Appleton High school gym after an absence of one year. The Appleton sub-regional tourney begins Tuesday night.

Tickets Available

Reserved and general admission tickets for the Appleton sub-regional tourney will be sold at the "gate" both Tuesday and Thursday nights, AHS officials announced today.

with AHS and Kaukauna playing the 7 o'clock game and Chilton and Kimberly meeting at 8:30.

The sub-regional championship will be decided Thursday night.

Finals Slated Saturday

The Appleton sub-regional favorite will be a veteran Terror team with a 14-4 season record, excellent height and two hold-overs (Jack Ulwelling and Tom Verkuilen) from the great AHS tournament team of 1956. By the same token, Neenah will be favored in the companion tourney at Menasha (whose winner will trek to the AHS gym for Saturday night's regional finals).

Kimberly (12-6) rates a close second choice in the Appleton tourney. Coach Gil Frank's Parmakers seem to be the "coming" team of the area (with only two seniors among the top six) and may indeed be ready to "arrive" even now.

Kaukauna, another relatively young team, has compiled a 5-11 record. Coach Gerry Hopfensperger has made considerable reconstruction progress in his first year at Kaukauna. His team, which gave several favorites a merry time in Mid-Eastern conference play, could prove troublesome in the tourney.

Proof of Unpredictability
Chilton, with a 3-11 season mark, is given the least chance to come through the sub-regional. Coach John Friedel's team did not compete in tourney play last year.

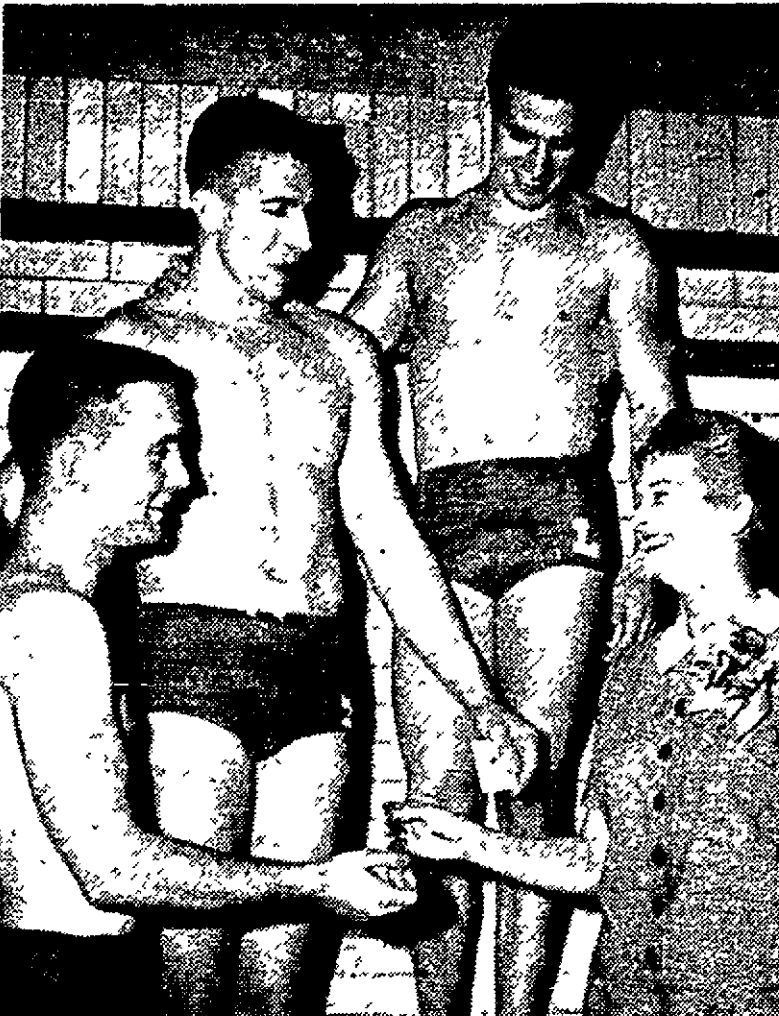

However, anyone rash enough to predict the outcome of any single game or the tourney as a whole ranks in the same class with the fellow who'd forecast a second-division finish for the New York Yankees in the '58 American league race.

Coach Dick Emanuel's Terrors are the best recent example of the unpredictability of tournament competition. In 1956, when they were considered in the "also ran" class they won the regional and sectional.

Record-smashing co-captains Mike Lepawsky and Dick Bjornson led the Lawrence college swimming team to fourth place—a gain of one spot over 1957—in the Midwest conference meet held in the Alexander gym pool during the weekend.

With Lepawsky and Bjornson joining Friday's diving tilist, Mike Murphy, as meet winners, the Vikes matched team ruler Grinnell and runnerup Knox in the number of individual championships. The Gene Davis-coached Vikes, however, lacked the depth to make a serious challenge for first or second. They finished six points behind third-place Carleton.

4th in 5 Years

Grinnell racked up 59 points in winning its fourth title in five years. Defending champion Knox, which like Grinnell and Lawrence, won three of the 10 events, finished with 50 points. Carleton was the only other school to win an event.

Lepawsky for the second straight day broke the conference 200-yard breast stroke record. He swam the event Saturday in 2:37.9 to sponge out the Menasha—A quartet of Winnebago county teams, all eyeing an eventual berth at the state tournament two weeks hence, begin competition in the Menasha sub-regional tourney here Tuesday night.

Opening night pairings match Menasha against Omro at 7 o'clock and Neenah against Oshkosh in the 8:30 game. The losers play for consolation honors at 7 o'clock Thursday night and the winners vie for the sub-regional crown in the second game.

One New Team

With this year's sub-regional, it marks the first time since 1944 that on the final night the Menasha gym will lack a championship game. Last year, the Jays played host to the winners of the Kimberly sub-regional.

Omro is the only new team in this year's field of four. The Little Nine entry competed at the district level for several years but formerly played here in the regionals. The Foxes replace New London in the Menasha meet.

Neenah has the best record of the four clubs, a neat 16-3. Two of the losses were to state champion Shawano and the third to Kimberly. In tournament play last year, the Rockets bowed to Menasha in their first game and lost to Appleton in their only consolation test.

Most Improved

Menasha, probably the most improved team in the area in the last month, has won six of its last seven games and is the only team to down conference champion Shawano. The Jays have an overall 9-5 slate.

In play last winter, the Jays topped Neenah, 72-49, but dropped a 66-65 decision to Oshkosh in a frenzied finish.

Oshkosh was one of the surprise teams in the tourney last year, upsetting Appleton and then defeating Menasha before falling to powerful Two Rivers Kimberly sub-regional winner in the finals.

Several of the boys who played with that team are back but the club has had its troubles this winter and finished with 3-11 in the Fox River Valley conference and 4-12 for the season.

Omro placed third in the Little Nine wheel with a 9-4 record and it has an overall 13-5 slate. The Foxes bowed to Hortonville in an overtime in the Hortonville sub-district a year ago.

Neenah Trinity Wins Title in Grade Tourney

Tips Oshkosh Grace In Lutheran Meet Finals, 32 to 28

Trinity of Neenah won the championship in the annual Fox Valley Lutheran Grade school basketball tournament over the weekend in the Appleton St. Paul school gym.

The champions beat Grace of Oshkosh in the finals, 32-28, after gaining the finals with wins over St. Matthew of Appleton (27-6) and Trinity of Kaukauna (36-25). Grace attained the last game after beating Menasha Trinity (37-23) and Freedom St. Peter (24-22).

Pollnow Scores 15

Jan Pollnow fired in 15 points for Trinity in the title game. The victors shot away to a big 23-10 halftime lead but then had to hold off a last quarter surge which saw the losers outscore the winners, 14-1, in the final period.

Host St. Paul of Appleton won the consolation title with a 32-9 win over St. Matthew of Appleton. Trinity of Kaukauna finished in third place by stopping Freedom St. Peter, 32-31, in a tilt between consolation bracket losers.

The tourney's top scorers were: Gerald Spalding, Kaukauna Trinity, 45 points; Leroy Fieck, Freedom St. Peter

Erases 17-Point Deficit to Beat Northwestern Preps

Down 48-31 with four minutes to go in the third quarter, Appleton's Fox Valley Lutheran High school basketball team fought back for a sizzling 66-64 victory over Watertown's Northwestern Preps Saturday night.

The victory in their season finale gave the Foxes an 11-9 season record. They won 11 of their last 15 games.

Trailing by 17 points midway through the third quarter, the Foxes went into a press and tallied the last 12 points of the period for a 48-43 deficit going into the final stanza. They finally tied the issue at 52 all and then dropped behind again. A Steve Boese jump shot with 30 seconds left broke up a 64-all tie.

Little Chute—St. Mary Menasha staved off a determined rally by St. Mary Springs of Fond du Lac and won the right to enter the state Catholic basketball tournament by edging the Ledgers 52-49 here Sunday afternoon.

In the regional tourney consolation contest, St. John of Little Chute took an easy 67-37 victory from St. Gregory of St. Nazianz.

It was three times and out for the Springs quintet. The Ledgers had dumped the Zephyrs twice during the regular season but could not do it again.

Menasha St. Mary '5' Will Meet Edgewood

The Menasha St. Mary basketball team will meet Madison Edgewood Thursday night in its opening test of the state Catholic tournament in De Pere. Edgewood won its own regional meet Sunday with an 87-54 win over Waukesha Memorial.

St. John ran into the same trouble Friday night by losing to Springs after beating the Ledgers on two earlier occasions.

Big Second Period

A big second period gave the Zephyrs a cushion which they preserved until early in the final quarter. The Menashans scored 20 points in the second frame while limiting Springs to 11.

Springs battled back gamely in the final quarter. Pat Below, top scorer for the Zephyrs opened the final eight minutes with a neat jump shot to make the score, 43-34, with Menasha in front. Paul Kramer then drilled a 1-hander and Mike Scott, scored on a drive-in. Jim Gau connected from the side for the

Bulldogs, Clints Set For Sub-Regionals

Will Compete at Shawano; 'Paca Plays at Stevens Point

Three Fox Cities area high schools—New London, Clintonville and Waupaca—will participate in the Shawano and Stevens Point sub-regional basketball tournaments this week.

New London meets Pulaski at 7:30 Tuesday night in a play-off for a berth in the Shawano sub-regional.

At 7:15 Wednesday night, Clintonville tackles state champion and host Shawano in the same tourney. The New London-Pulaski winner plays Wittenberg in the nightcap.

Finish Seventh

Waupaca tangles with Mosinee at 8:40 Tuesday night in the Stevens Point sub-regional. Marshfield meets Nekoosa in the opener.

New London's Bulldogs finished seventh in the Mid-Eastern conference with a 3-11 record. Pulaski finished last in the Northeastern Wisconsin circuit with a 0-14 mark. The winners' next foe, Wittenberg, won the Central Wisconsin conference title and has posted a 16-1 mark for the season.

Clintonville wound up last in the M-E and achieved only one pre-tournament win in 18 starts. Shawano, the M-E's 1957-8 champ, and odds-on regional tourney favorite, has compiled a 19-1 record to date.

The Shawano sub-regional title will be decided Thursday. The winner plays the Marinette sub-regional ruler Saturday night at Shawano. Participating at Marinette will be the host school, Oconto, Coleman and Oconto Falls.

Waupaca and Mosinee will play an encore to their recent non-conference game. In that one, Mosinee pulled out a 66-62 victory.

Waupaca, co-last place finisher in the CW, has an overall record of 3-14. The Comets won twice in the conference and beat Plainfield. Their non-conference losses were to Hortonville and Mosinee.

Stevens Point and Wisconsin Rapids draw byes in the first round at the Point. They swing into action Wednesday night against the first-night winners.

The Siwashers share the tie with Coe and Carleton. Lawrence concludes 1957-8 operations against Ripon tonight in the Alexander gymnasium. The varsity contest will be preceded by a game pairing the Lawrence and Ripon frosh at 6 o'clock.

Lawrence led by as much as five points on several occasions in the first half but Knox closed the gap and the Vikings' last advantage was when it was 28-26 Lawrence just before the intermission. The visitors outshot the Siwashers 38 per cent to 24 per cent in the first half and owned a 22-20 rebounding edge. In the final 20 minutes, however, Knox shot 41 per cent to Lawrence's 22 per cent and pulled in 36 rebounds to just nine by Lawrence.

Hawkeyes to Play Purdue '5' Tonight

Indiana Also in Fight for Survival, Meeting Illinois

BY JOE MOOSHL
Associated Press Sports Writer

Indiana, Iowa and Purdue battle for Big Ten basketball survival tonight while league-leading Michigan State sits back and views the situation with casual indifference.

The Spartans (9-4) will probably be pulling for Illinois (5-7) to upset Indiana (8-4) at Champaign while Iowa (7-5) invades Purdue (8-5) but the results will make little difference to Michigan State.

Should Indiana lose to Illinois, idle Michigan State will be assured of a title share. However, the Spartans, defending co-champions with Indiana, want all of the take this year and to get it they must defeat the Hoosiers at East Lansing Saturday regardless of tonight's outcome.

Vitality Interested
Purdue and Iowa will be vitally interested in the Indiana-Illinois result. If the Hoosiers beat Illinois, the Hawkeyes and the Boilermakers will lose any chance for a title tie. If Indiana loses, the winner of the Iowa-Purdue match will retain a chance for a share of the championship.

Michigan (4-8) is at Wisconsin (3-10) in tonight's only other game. Northwestern (7-6) is idle and Ohio State (8-6) and Minnesota (5-9) have completed their schedules.

Aside from the Indiana-Michigan State game which will be regionally televised Saturday, Illinois will be at Northwestern and Iowa at Michigan winding up one of the most hectic basketball races in Western conference history.

The break in the standings came Saturday when Indiana—always tough at home—romped over Purdue, 109-95, and Michigan State crossed up Iowa at Iowa City, 83-65.

Madison—(AP)—Wisconsin's be-draggled Badgers complete their Big Ten basketball season tonight against Michigan with no chance of escaping the bottom of the standings.

The Badgers suffered their tenth loss in 13 conference games Saturday night at Evanston, Ill., where Northwestern took an 82-65 decision. It was Wisconsin's seventh straight loss.

Starts Out Promising
Tonight's contest ends a schedule which looked so promising when the Badgers won five of their first six games in December. Wisconsin beat talented Michigan State, Ohio State and Illinois in January before it began its losing streak in the second semester.

Wisconsin can share last place in the final standings if it beats Michigan and if the Wolverines lose to Iowa in their conference finale.

Northwestern's constantly improving Wildcats took their seventh victory in 13 Big Ten games by whipping the Badgers last Saturday.

The Wildcats led midway in the first half, but the Badgers managed a 32-32 halftime tie.

Wisconsin returned to the floor and pulled ahead 36-33 before Northwestern went ahead to stay on two baskets by Nick Mantis and one by Joe Ruklick. Ruklick led both teams with 22 points. Bob Litzow led the Badgers with 15 points.

Hortonville High Meets Cedar Grove Thursday

Polar Bears in Denmark District; Bonduel Plays 'Wega' in Amherst Tourney Opener

(From AP Dispatches)

Hortonville meets Cedar Grove and Bonduel plays Weyauwega in Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association District tournament openers Thursday evening.

Teams beside Hortonville in the Denmark district meet are Casco and Denmark, which also play Thursday. The Bonduel 'Wega' winner in the Amherst district will play the victor of Thursday's Almond-Port Edwards game for the tournament title.

Undefeated Randolph, top-rated team in final "Little 16" rankings, won the Rio sub-district title, stopping Fox Lake, 86-48, for Randolph's twentieth straight triumph.

56 Teams To Play
A total of 56 small high schools are playing in the 16 district tournaments. Meanwhile the teams from the big schools start tournament action this week in 19 regional meets, each of which is divided into two sub-regional tournaments.

The winners of the 13 district and 19 regional meets will compete March 10-15 in the sectional tournaments, which sift out the eight teams going to Madison for the state championship tourney, March 20-22.

Randolph meets unrated Juneau at the DeForest district tournament. In the same meet, Poyntette encounters eleventh-ranked Sun Prairie, which walloped sixth-ranked Marshall, 76-57, Saturday night for the Waterloo sub-district title. The Sun Prairie-Marshall contest was the first tournament battle between two teams on the final Little 16.

Other Little 16 teams reaching the district level are: Monticello 3, Drummond 5, Edgar 7, Thorp 8, Alma Center 9, Cochrane 10, Glidden 12, and Niagara 15.

None of the Little 16 survivors are matched in opening games at district tournaments. Four district meets, including the one at DeForest, have two Little 16 teams each. Edgar and Thorp are in the Marathon meet; Alma Center and Cochrane at Gilmanton, and Drummond and Glidden are at Mellen.

Pairings at district meets other than those involving Fox Cities teams:

Cashton vs. Viola; Trempealeau vs. Wauwatu; Crivitz vs. Three Lakes; East Troy vs. Slinger; Lake Mills vs. Wilmot; Gilmanton vs. Alma Center vs. Galesville; Cochrane vs. Plum City.

Highland vs. Montford vs. Seneca; Patch Grove vs. Spring Green.

Marathon vs. Abbotsford vs. Rib Lake, Edgar vs. Thorp. Mellen vs. Bruce vs. Glidden; Drummond vs. Maple.

Monticello vs. Blanchardville vs. Monticello; Cuba City vs. Oregon.

Turtle Lake vs. Altoona vs. Hammond; Cameron vs. Luck.

Westfield vs. Elroy vs. Montello; Kewaskum vs. Oakfield.

120-pound match. White was upset in the second round by Ray Hamel of Madison Wisconsin High, the eventual champion.

Krueger Decided
Gary Krueger was decided 5-0 by John Walsh of Madison West in his opening bout in the 128 pound class.

Milwaukee South won its seventh state title in 15 tries, dethroning defending champion Valders by two points. South, which won its last title in 1954, had 19 points. Valders had 17. Kenosha was third with 16 points while Marshfield was fourth with 15 in the closely-contested tournament sponsored by the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association.

Norbert Kuchenbecker met Jim White of Coleman, the defending champion, and lost a 6-0 decision in his first round

Packer Board Meets Tonight

Expect Stockholders To Vote on Division Of 1958 Games

Green Bay—(AP)—The annual stockholders meeting of the Green Bay Packers Football

Monday, March 3, 1958 Appleton Post-Crescent 31

corporation will be held tonight.

Topping the agenda will be a probable decision on the division of National Football league home games between Green Bay and Milwaukee, the election of 15 members of the board of directors, and the annual financial report.

All indications point to a 4-2 split in games, with Green Bay getting four, instead of the former 3-3 division.

This city's outdoor Milwaukee 96,322 to 64,781 in paid admissions last season; thanks in great measure to the Packers' new 32,250-seat stadium here.

The 45-man board of directors will meet at 5 o'clock in advance of the stockholders to hear a report from a committee that has been studying the home game situation. The board then will make its recommendations.

Platteville '5' Wins WSCC Championship

By The Associated Press
Platteville clinched the Wisconsin State College conference basketball championship Saturday night with an 80-77 victory over stubborn Stevens Point.

It was the Pioneers' tenth conference triumph against only one loss.

Platteville's victory erased any chance La Crosse had to tie for the title. The Indians squeezed out an 87-85 decision over Eau Claire on two free throws by reserve Dave Bartolotti with two seconds to go at Eau Claire. La Crosse now is 8-3.

Balks at Big Cut

Conley Trade Rumors Cropping Up Again

Bradenton, Fla. — Geno Conley's refusal to sign a Milwaukee Braves' contract he says carries a 25 per cent pay cut has revived rumors that the 6-8 pitcher may be traded.

General Manager John Quinn declined comment on an Associated Press story out of Milwaukee Saturday quoting Conley on the 25 per cent pay slice. Conley, one of seven Braves' holdouts, said he "almost flipped" when he first saw the contract.

Wants Taken Raise
"I understand Mr. Quinn said the first contracts sent out by the club were merely formalities," said the elongated right-hander who won nine and lost nine last year. "but I never received another one from him."
Conley, who posed his nine victories after June 26, said he believes he deserves a token raise—"certainly not a cut." A 25 per cent slash is the maximum permitted under major league rules.

Conley is mentioned as possibly ticketed for the Philadelphia Phillies in a deal for center fielder Richie Ashburn. If Billy Bruton's knee does not improve quickly, the Braves could use an established center fielder.
Conley, shortstop Johnny Logan and first baseman Frank Torre are sitting tight in Milwaukee until they sign.
Bob "Hurricane" Hazle came to terms Sunday.
Meanwhile, Quinn said the Braves have never had so many holdouts before.
"It may or may not be a record for any team," he said. "I really don't know the statistics on that score. It is not a figure that we take any pride in."

While Quinn tried to lure his holdouts into the fold, Manager Fred Haney revealed publicly for the first time Saturday that he had fired several players for breaking several last season. He declined to identify them or tell the amount of their fines, but one of them is said to have been assessed $250 for a major infraction.

Vikes Win 3 Individual Swim Titles

mark he established in Friday's preliminaries—2:39.8. The Saturday clocking also represents a new team and pool record.

The only other individual champion besides Lepawsky to defend his title successfully was Knox' Bob Proebsting. The versatile star won the 440-yard freestyle for the second straight year—this time in 5:23—and added the title in the 50-yard freestyle to become the meet's only double winner.

In winning the 200-yard backstroke title, Bjornson cracked the Lawrence record and pool record for the second straight day. His Saturday clocking was 2:22.2.

The only other conference record breaker besides Lepawsky was Carleton sophomore Dave Murray, who hails from Green Bay. He won the 200-yard individual medley in 2:26.4. He beat out Grinnell's Jim Jacobson, who Friday night had set a new conference standard of 2:30.7.

Murphy, Bjornson and Lepawsky each accounted for six points of the Lawrence total of 24. A fourth place in the 400-yard medley relay (by Bjornson, Pete Switzer, Lepawsky and Bob Swain) earned the Vikes four points. The final two came on a fifth place in the 400-yard freestyle relay, swum by Bjornson, Lepawsky, Murphy and Swain.

Race of the Day

The race of the day in the finals was the 200-yard backstroke. Bjornson was second at the 50-yard mark and remained second at 100 yards as Grinnell's Art Johnson set a brisk pace. With 50 yards to go, Bjornson was still two yards behind Johnson. As a near-capacity gallery cheered, the husky Vike inched up on his foe and they made their final turn for the 25-yard home stretch. Bjornson caught Johnson midway down the stretch and after battling stroke for stroke, finally forged ahead to win by a half-yard.

Lepawsky was in front all of the way in his conference record-setting journey of 200 yards via the breast stroke. He led Cornell's Lehnhardt by two yards at the half-way mark and lengthened it to three at 150. The strong little tank star churned up a storm on the gun lap and won by nearly 10 yards.

Baton Rouge — Ken Venturi, 26-year-old San Franciscan, today held his third 1958 golf tournament victory, a 4-stroke triumph in the $15,000 Baton Rouge open.

The confident Californian moved on to New Orleans today for a crack at the $20,000 prize money in the Greater New Orleans open after Sunday's lopsided victory in the Baton Rouge event.

Tied for second at 280 were Lionel Hebert of Lafayette, La., and Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa.

Ledgers and this sliced the Zephyrs lead to 43-40.

With the near capacity crowd in a frenzy, Ed Lotzer hit for St. Mary to push the lead to five points but Kramer matched it. Gary Batley broke through the Springs defense to score for the Zephyrs but Tom Herre counted on a long set for the Ledgers.

With less than two minutes left it was Batley again as he worked his way through for a short 1-hander that put the lead back at five points. Lotzer then followed it with a break-away bucket on a steal and Below followed with a free throw to give St. Mary's a strong 52-44 lead.

Hits Short Shot

With one minute left Scott dropped a short jump for Springs and 20 seconds later he dropped two free throws after being fouled by Batley. Batley complained of being called for his fifth personal and Scott dropped another one on the technical. The dead-eyed Springs forward hit 11 straight without a miss in the game.

The Zephyrs controlled the ball for the last seconds until Gau broke up a pass and fired the ball to Scott who drove in for a short hook which was perfectly blocked by Lotzer. This was the last try Springs had at the basket.

Scott took the game's scoring honors with 18 while Below had 15 for St. Mary's.

St. John had little trouble with St. Gregory as the Dutchmen ran up a 18-8 lead in the first quarter and then scored 14 more in the second period while limiting the St. Nazianz team to nine.

Coach Bill Fitzpatrick of the Chuters gave his reserves a chance to see a lot of action in the second half.

Reserve senior Gene Janssen canned four baskets in the fourth quarter for St. John.

Junior Tim Tousey made his best showing of the season by hitting 14 points. Soph Tom Geerts followed with 13.

A scoring oddity last weekend was the identical totals of Neenah's Mildred Wollenhoffer, who rolled 387 in singles, 387 in doubles and 387 in the team event.

Terrors, Ghosts Open Tourney In AHS Gym

crowns and finished second in the state meet.

Last year, when they were expected to make good progress down the tourney trail, the Terrors lost their opener to underdog Oshkosh.

Kimberly's last regional title came in 1955 when they went on to qualify for the state meet.

Kaukauna has lost its tourney opener for at least three successive years. The Ghosts' greatest success in recent years was reaching the 1952 regional finals, in which they lost a close decision to Neenah.

Spill AHS' Return

In 1952, the Ghosts spoiled the Terrors' return to state tournament field with a second-round win. Since then, AHS has beaten Kaukauna twice — in 1955 consolation play and in 1956 first-round title play.

As an example of the changing fortunes of athletics, Hopfensperger will shepherd an "enemy" force into the AHS gym. "Hoppy," one of the most renowned of AHS' basketball alumni who went on to star at Marquette university, returns to the arena of his alma mater on official business for the first time since in five seasons.

The Ghosts, who finished sixth in the M-E, will give away height and experience to the Terrors, who wound up second in the FRVC. Kaukauna split its only two non-league games, beating Ripon and losing narrowly to Green Bay East.

Likely Kaukauna starters are Jim Walsh and Lee Weyenberg, forwards; Bill Simon, center; and Bill Borchardt and Gary Vanevenhoven, guards. Weyenberg and Borchardt are sophomores, and Vanevenhoven is a junior.

Simon, the Ghosts' leading scorer, averaged 12.2 points a game for conference play.

Win 3 Non-Leaguers

The Terrors won 11 of 14 conference games and three of four non-leaguers. In their FRVC finale last Friday, an ultra-cold second half snapped their winning streak at nine straight and cost them a chance to tie for the league title.

AHS' probable starters—Verkullen, Otwell, Howie Hamann, Bill Bedard and Dick King — are all seniors. The first two replacements — Ron Abel and John Nussbaum — are sophs.

Kimberly will line up for the opening tip-off with two sophomores — Don Hearden and Darrell Jansen — and one junior (Jack Lamers) as starters. Seniors Warren Polman (6-0) and Henry "Junior" Peerenboom (5-10) round out the probable starting array.

Lamers, a flashy 6-2 forward, averaged 16.1 points for M-E play. Jansen, a 6-3 center, averaged 14.1 in the conference. Hearden, a 5-10, scored at a 12.8 M-E pace.

2 Freshmen Play

Dave Minton, 5-11 freshman, is the Papermakers' No. 6 man. Kimberly's first-night rival, Chilton, will play the other tournament freshman — Tom Reinkober.

Minton joined the varsity after mid-season.

Kimberly, which had a 9-5 conference mark and finished third, lost only once outside the M-E. That was to AHS in the season opener when the Papermakers were without the services of Lamers. Kimberly has beaten Green Bay East, Menasha St. Mary and Little Chute St. John.

Chilton's probable starting lineup comprises Jerry Daun (5-11 senior) and Mike Hoffmann (5-11 soph) at forwards; Ken Suchan (6-6 junior) at center; and Don Hoffmann (5-6 soph) and Al Schmidkofer (5-8 junior) guards.

Daun, one of the Eastern Wisconsin conference's top scoring talents, has averaged about 16 points a game.

Pete Hoffmann, Mike's twin is one of the forecourt alternates.

The Tigers tied for eighth in the EW with a 2-10 mark and beat Hilbert outside the conference.

UW Boxers Draw With Cougars, 4-4

Madison — Wisconsin's boxing team lost its first two matches and forfeited two others Saturday night, but still managed to draw with Washington State, 4-4.

The Badgers' Charles Mohr, at 156 pounds, and Bob Christopherson, at 165, each registered his third victory without a defeat. Heavyweight Ron Freeman and 178-pound Bill Urban also registered victories for Wisconsin.

Two meetings at which candidates for city offices will speak have been scheduled later this month by the League of Women Voters.

Both will be at 8 o'clock at night in the council chambers at city hall, Mrs. James Ming, the league's voter service chairman, announced today.

One will be held Tuesday night, March 25; the other Thursday night, March 27.

Both candidates for mayor, Incumbent Robert L. Roemer and First ward Ald. Clarence A. Mitchell, will be given time at both sessions.

March 25

Candidates to whom invitations have been sent, Mrs. Ming said, include only those who are in contests.

Aldermen and supervisor candidates scheduled for the first meeting, March 25, are from the Third, Sixth, Eighth, Sixteenth and Eighteenth wards.

Sixth ward aldermanic candidates are Incumbent Charles Captain, Lawrence Burch, John G. Hurley and Merrill F. Filz. Eighth ward aldermanic opponents are Incumbent R. P. Groh and former Ald. Harold J. McGinnis. August W. Appel and Clarence A. Lautenschlager are Sixteenth ward aldermanic foes. Opponents in the Eighteenth ward are Gerald Wagner and Fred Rehfeldt.

March 27

Aldermen and supervisor candidates scheduled for the second meeting, March 27, are from the Second, Eleventh, Twelfth and Seventeenth wards.

Aldermanic races pit Incumbent Homer Malmstrom against former Ald. Axel Solie and Harold C. Calmes in the

Vike Wrestlers Finish 7th in Loop Meet

Lawrence college's wrestling team finished in a tie for seventh place in the Midwest conference meet over the weekend at Carleton college.

The Vikes' Carl Schwendler picked up the Vikes' only three points, wrestling at 191 pounds. He was pinned by St. Olaf's George Thronson at a time when Schwendler was leading, 2-0, in his opening match.

Then Schwendler beat Carleton's Bill Steinberg, 2-0, and lost to Knox's Kent Richards, 4-1.

Other Vike wrestlers — 137-pounder Bill Blask, 157-pounder Jim Davis and 167-pounder Fred Swan — dropped two straight matches, while Lawrence's Paul Tuteur dropped his only match.

Cornell replaced Carleton as league champion. Monmouth tied for seventh place with Lawrence.

Unofficial team point totals were: Cornell, 89; Carleton, 53; Knox, 43; St. Olaf, 38; Grinnell, 37; Coe, 18; Lawrence and Monmouth, 3 and Ripon, 2.

Store Manager, Five Youths Fight in Alley

Police Saturday afternoon were called to investigate a fight in the North alley between N. Onida and N. Morrison streets.

Jerry Hames, 710 N. Superior street, assistant manager of an E. College avenue store, told police five youths beat him. Questioning of the youths, aged 14 and 15, indicated that Hames had ordered the youths out of the store and the fight occurred when he went with them to the alley, police said.

Students Will Hear Talk by Ex-Lawrentian

Everett Bauman to Discuss Impact of Teachers on His Life

When Everett Bauman, public relations director of the Creole Petroleum company of Caracas, Venezuela, comes to Appleton Thursday to address Lawrence's all-college convocation, he will speak from the same stage he climbed 20 years ago when as an undergraduate student he received his bachelor's degree — summa cum laude.

He has chosen to speak on "Freedom and Responsibility — 20 Years After," in which he will recall the impact one of his history teachers had on him as a senior, and what it all means to him now.

As a public relations manager, Bauman finds himself involved in two subjects of major interest to Lawrence — namely, the recruiting of college trained personnel and education at the college level of students from both Venezuelan and United States families living in Venezuela.

A member of the honorary scholastic fraternity Phi Beta Kappa while at Lawrence, Bauman also was affiliated with Sigma Phi Epsilon social fraternity.

Other Degrees

He received a master of arts degree in 1940 from the Fletcher school of law and diplomacy at Medford, Mass., and after winning a scholarship in Columbia university's department of journalism, he was awarded a master of science degree.

Winning yet another scholarship — this time from Moore McCormack for study of the South American press — Bauman became a foreign correspondent in Argentina. Before joining the Creole Petroleum corporation in 1946, he served three years as head of the United Press in Venezuela.

Bauman is married to a former Lawrencean, Janice Marie Newell, ex '38, who before her marriage was a teacher in the American high school in Ward, Buenos Aires.

The lecture will be at 11 o'clock Thursday morning in the Lawrence chapel. All convocation programs are open to the public without admission charge.

Harris was the husband of the former Princess Cecelia of the House of Hohenzollern. They were married in 1949 in Mechlin castle. It was the first wedding involving a commoner in the castle's 1,200-year history.

Harris was stricken at his home Saturday night and died yesterday of a cerebral hemorrhage.

He met the princess in 1945 while trying to trace a missing treasure in famous paintings. Harris was a lieutenant with U. S. occupation troops in Germany. Princess Cecelia was among World War II refugees at a hunting lodge near Darmstadt.

Harris was discharged from the army in 1946 and returned to Amarillo. He kept up a correspondence with the princess for nearly three years. Then he returned to Europe and they were married.

Harris was a Native of Maud, Okla., where he was a drug store soda jerk in his boyhood. He moved to Amarillo in 1941 after studying interior decorating in New York.

The couple has a daughter, Kira Alexandrine, 3.

Blast Causes Minor Damage at A-Powered Generating Plant

Shippingport, Pa. — The explosion of a small heating boiler last night caused minor damage but did not affect operations at the nation's first full-scale atomic-powered generating plant near this western Pennsylvania town. No one was injured.

A spokesman for Duquesne Light company, which operates the power plant under contract with the atomic energy commission, said the boiler was in a separate building and had no connection with the nuclear portion of the plant.

He said cause of the blast has not been learned. The $100-million plant is located about 25 miles northwest of Pittsburgh. The nuclear reactor produces steam which runs electric generators.

Scholarly but Lively Styles Enrich New Books on Melville, Wordsworth

BY ELIZABETH PORTER
Assistant Professor of English,
Lawrence College

"Wordsworth's Cambridge Education," by Ben Ross Schneider, Jr., instructor of English, Lawrence College, Cambridge University Press, 1957. "Melville as Lecturer," by Merton M. Sealts, Jr., associate professor of English, Lawrence College, Harvard University Press, 1957.)

A persistent quarrel in modern literary scholarship is that between those critics who seek to focus directly on individual works of art, discounting biographical and even philosophical consideration of their authors' backgrounds, and the critics who seek to relate authors as carefully as possible to their backgrounds, historical, philosophical, and literary. Both approaches have produced valuable works of criticism and most modern readers would hesitate to dispense with either. Few if any literary masterpieces exist independent of a context in which they can be profitably studied, but at the same time all great works of literature have intrinsic, independent values.

These two scholarly books by Lawrence college faculty members contribute to our knowledge of the major creations of their subjects, Wordsworth and Melville, without focussing directly on those creations, but also without failing to make the point that the works themselves are the reason for the studies; that the author is something more than the sum of his parts.

18th Century Cambridge "Wordsworth's Cambridge Education" is an attempt to create from all available information on the intellectual climate and academic outlines of 18th century Cambridge a landscape in which to set Wordsworth. This information is of course matched with specific detail about Wordsworth himself, as well as relevant and effective quotations from his poetry, but the backbone of the book is the clarity and immediacy of its portrait of Cambridge.

It was an environment in many ways alien to the young Wordsworth, since he was unsympathetic with its academic and philosophical expediency, and since as a north-country lad he was conspicuously an outsider.

This is one of author Schneider's most successful points.

To Place A Want-Ad
Dial 3-4411

only allowed but actually forced popular reputation was not what it had been some years before, after the publication of "Typee" and "Omoo." Perhaps no speaker who compares his audience's world too unfavorably with a distant one can expect a completely sympathetic response.

From News Accounts

In "Melville as Lecturer," Prof. Sealts reconstructs from contemporary newspaper accounts the texts of the three lectures given by Melville in three successive seasons (1857-1860), and discusses the essential aspects of these lectures.

The lecture platform was a profitable location for many writers of the 19th century, and certainly Melville hoped to profit from his lectures. It is clear, however, from the careful accounts given, that there is greater value in them for present day Melville scholars than there was, financially at least, for him.

Two of the lectures (those most fully reproduced) were specifically directed against modern civilization and the third was critical of one characteristic of that civilization. In two senses the lecture tour version than the others, were poorly timed; Melville's strikes a familiar note in calling for new perspectives among 19th century Americans.

Critical in Tone

The lectures were titled "Statues in Rome," "The South Seas," and "Traveling." In the season 1857-1858 an audience could expect to be told that the ancient world represented by the Apollo and the Laocoon had "a heroic tone" unmatched in the world of the locomotive and the Patent Office. In "The South Seas" (1858-1859) Melville moved from "the Utopia of the ancients" to one distant in space instead, and concluded that only "a civilization morally, mentally, and physically higher than one which has culminated in 'almshouses; prisons, and hospitals' could pretend to set itself up as superior to the 'Edens of the South Seas.'"

"Traveling," although of necessity presented in a much briefer version than the others, strikes a familiar note in calling for new perspectives among 19th century Americans.

The essential point to be made about the lectures, however, is not that they expressed an alien point of view, for after all if Melville had felt at home in his world he would not have criticized it, and we should be the poorer. The real importance of the lectures, as Prof. Sealts demonstrates both in discussions of the individual lectures and in provocative references to Melville's major works, is that they foreshadow the "prevailing mood" of the writings after 1860, in which "the persistence of memories and the value of the past are major themes."

Each of these works presents a new and thoughtful consideration of a significant period in its subject's career, and both authors are to be commended for combining scholarly content and urbane, lively prose style. The two distinguished university presses also might be commended for attractive, readable volumes, appropriately presented in Harvard crimson and Cambridge blue.
